Wish granted — alley will be blocked

By NANCY WALLACE
Staff Writer

Residents with garages along the north-south alley between San Antonio Avenue and Vallejo Way just below 13th Street got their wish granted Monday night by the Upland City Council — the alley will soon be closed to through traffic.

The homeowners have complained to the city since last fall that youths, en route to Upland High School, are avoiding the long wait at the corner of 13th Street and San Antonio by dodging south through their alley.

They told the city's street and light committee in November that they are afraid to back their cars out of their garages because these young drivers rush by at unsafe speeds. They also agreed that leaving the alley open to all traffic allows would-be burglars to peruse the area in daylight, preparing to break into a home or garage at night when the alley is dark.

At the same meeting, residents who have garages bordering the three alleys immediately to the east asked for blockades. They reasoned that if the alley nearest San Antonio were closed, the high school youths would speed down their alleys instead. They also reported frustration with the amount of burglaries in the area.

But other residents with garages bordering the latter alleys complained to the council Monday that they didn't want any gates, nor did they want the city to make the expenditure to put up the gates for a six-month trial period as initially proposed. City Engineer Fred Blanchard said the gates across all four alleys would cost the city about $4,000.

The residents were unimpressed with promises that the city would provide each homeowner with a separate lock to allow them to use the alley if they wish. Owners of boats and large motor homes said the gates would cause them more headaches.

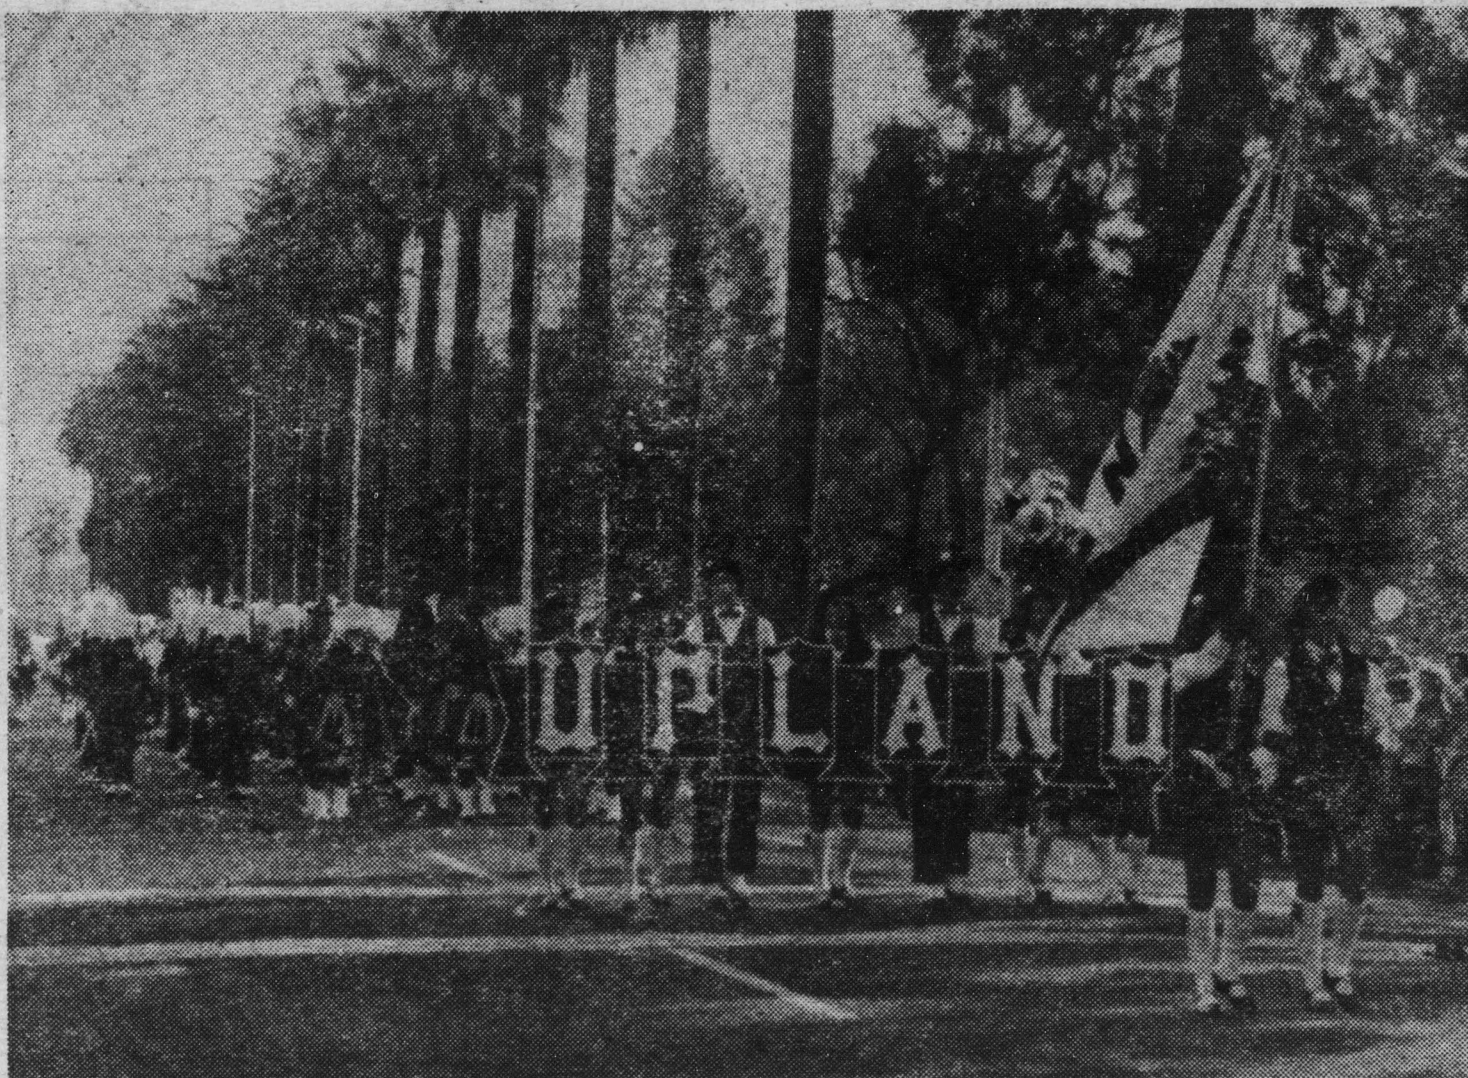

The council opted to close the alley nearest San Antonio — where all residents were in agreement — and leave the remaining three open. If, within six months, other residents experience too many youths using their alleys to escape the congestion at 13th and San Antonio, they may return to the council with a request to close the alleys.

In other action, the council voted unanimously to allow a school of dance and theater arts to operate in an industrial complex, an area where such schools are not normally allowed.

Planning Director Bill Young explained that the Planning Commission denied the school's application for a conditional use permit last month because the members felt a school for young children should not be located in an area with industrial equipment nearby and heavy trucks moving in and out.

Owner Beth-Ann Brown and her supporters filled the council chambers to overflowing, many of them repeating that children do not leave the studio until their parents arrive to take them home and therefore would be in no danger.

Council members were most impressed with Brown's need for a high ceiling, necessary for ballet

JOINS CELEBRATION —The Upland High School marching band, drill team and flag units took part in the parade for the rededication of the state Capitol Building in Sacramento on Saturday, Jan. 9. Local Assemblyman Jim Cramer arranged a tour lifts and baton tosses. Only buildings constructed for industrial uses have ceilings high enough, Brown said.

Council member Ina Petokas suggested that the zoning definition for light industrial areas be amended to include dance studios because of their special need for wide buildings with high ceilings. Instead, the council agreed to let Brown operate her studio for a six-month trial period after which it will review the operation's success in that area.

In other action, the council denied a city staff proposal to change zoning on the nearly one-acre lot at the northeast corner of Eighth Street and First Avenue.

City planners recommended changing the area from single-family-residential zoning to limited-commercial zoning because the general plan called for commercial zoning in this neighborhood, which is surrounded on either side by commercial zoning. The state requires that cities revise their zoning to conform with their general plan.

Residents from the neighborhood said the proposed change angered and frustrated them. They didn't want the possibility of a business, however small, moving next door. Most were elderly and one man said he had lived there since 1933.

"It seems to me sometimes planning doesn't take into consideration the needs of people," Petokas said in response to the suggested zone change. "I would prefer to let these people, who have lived here all their lives, live out the rest of their lives in peace and quiet."

The council then directed the Planning Commission to amend the general plan to keep this neighborhood zoned residential.

for the students of the renovated Capitol Building as well as Sacramento's Old Town. The more than 100 students financed the trip north themselves. The students are under the direction of instructors A. Abercrombie and H. Barger.

Brunch sponsored by hospital auxiliary

"Reflections" will be the theme of the annual Trump Brunch, Monday, Jan. 25, when the yearly event, sponsored by the San Antonio Community Hospital Auxiliary, is held in the hospital's Alta Auditorium from 10 a.m.-2 p.m., it was announced by Mrs. Isaac Funk, auxiliary president. The cost is $7 per person. Proceeds from the Trump Brunch will be used to further auxiliary philanthropies benefiting San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

According to Mrs. Funk, "All members and their friends are invited to attend this event. Groups will not only be playing bridge but other types of games as well. Some hospital friends and supporters may wish to organize a table just for the purpose of chatting with other friends, while enjoying the attractive surroundings and the delightful brunch to be served at 11:30 a.m. Numerous door prizes are also being procured for the entertainment of the guests."

Additional information or reservations for this event may be made by calling the hospital Public Relations Department at (714) 985-2811, extension 1345 by Thursday, Jan. 21.

Serving as co-chairmen of this annual event are Mrs. Bill Metcalf and Mrs. Frank Hoover. Other volunteers assisting are Mrs. Bert Francis, Mrs. George Vinnedge, Mrs. Lawrence Parker and Mrs. Joan Forter.

5 jobs eliminated by school board

By JIM MARXEN
Staff Writer

Twenty Chaffey Joint Union High School District administrators were notified Monday night that they may not have their administrative jobs next year.

In the first of an expected series of cost-cutting measures designed to meet a reduced income in 1982-83, five administrative positions were eliminated by district trustees.

"I find this the most difficult of any agenda item I've ever had to bring to this board in my six years here," said Superintendent Mike Dirksen as he read his recommendation on the cuts.

"It pains me deeply."

The move will eliminate one principal position, four assistant principal positions, a director of special programs position, a director of student services, and an acting director of career education.

Those whose jobs are affected will not necessarily lose their employment with the district; they may be transferred to positions of lower status and pay in the district, district officials said.

Created were a new principal position at High School No. 6 planned for Etiwanda, an assistant principal position at that school and a director of special services for the entire district.

The reductions will go into effect July 1.

Following a closed session, the board appointed Upland Principal Janet Wright to the new position of director of special services, effective July 1. Dirksen said he will ask the board to fill the principalships at Upland, High School No. 6 and the combined continuation facility on Feb. 1.

Like all of the nearly 100 students, administrators and teachers attending the meeting, Dirksen was somber as he read off the names of those who will receive notices.

All assistant principals, two principals and those heading special programs, students services and career education will officially receive the bad news this week.

Not all administrators named will lose their jobs, however. For instance, the move will remove one of the three assistant principal positions at each comprehensive high school, leaving two administrative positions intact.

In the same vote, the board consolidated the district's two continuation high schools into one school at the Valley View campus in Ontario. Only one principal position will be required when that change occurs.

Mountain High Alternative School was moved onto the Valley View campus last fall after a fire destroyed its facility in Montclair and the two programs now exist side-by-side.

Both principals, Earl "Phil" Gossweiler (Valley View) and John Tracey (Mountain High), are among those who will receive notices.

In addition, the board authorized a notice be sent to former Montclair

High School principal Stephen Butters who is on leave of absence.

It is still uncertain how much the reductions will affect the district's budget, but Dirksen's preliminary estimate is that the total will come to about $35,000.

But, he noted, if all the administrative positions been maintained, the addition of two new administrative posts at the Etiwanda high school would have cost the district an extra $85,000 next year.

Administrators have the ability to "bump" other employees over whom they have more seniority.

See CUTS/next page

Administrators get notices

The following is a list of those administrators in the Chaffey Joint Union High School District who will receive notices that they may not return to their current positions next fall.

Included on the list are assistant principals Barry Cadwallader, Ontario High; Ronald Eckert, Chaffey High; Mary Pollock, Alta Loma High; David Radcliff, Montclair High; and Donald Stalwick, Upland High.

Also included are assistant principals Donald Culp, Upland; Glenn Fisher, Chaffey; Betty Speas, Montclair; David Campbell, Alta Loma; Mark LeBrun, Ontario; John Mendoza, Montclair; Earl Miller, Alta Loma; Norman Woods, Chaffey; and Linda Schneider, Upland.

Also receiving notices will be V. Monroe Lair, director of student services; Edward C. Lopez, director of special programs; and Carroll Smith, acting director of career education.

Principals Earl "Phil" Gossweiler of Valley View continuation high school and John Tracey of Mountain High Alternative School were also included on the list.

Stephen Butters, principal of Montclair High before his leave of absence this year, was included in the board's action Monday night.

Cuts from prior page

so it is impossible to predict exactly how much money will be saved, Dirksen noted.

Attributing the need for reduction to the belief that income is not likely to meet expenditures during the 1982-83 school year, Dirksen outlined the need for drastic cuts in a letter to the board.

"The district has balanced the budget for each of the last five years by using reserve funds," he said.

"The reserve funds are now virtually depleted."

He cited reductions in personnel through attrition and a reduction in the number of class periods available to students as measures that have already been taken to reduce costs.

"Unfortunately, these steps have not been sufficient to meet the financial impact of Proposition 13 as its effects now reach full force."

Dirksen also told the board that management ranks have been cut by 22 percent over the last five years. The changes approved Monday night, he said, will bring the total reduction to 33 percent.

Those affected by the notices talked quietly about the future, expressing frustrations arising from a shrinking budget.

"It's impossible to overestimate the seriousness of our financial situation," said Upland High's Wright, who will not receive a notice.

"This is a necessary indication of the depth and breadth of the financial crisis we find ourselves in."

Wright said the reduction will have an effect on every student in the district.

John Mendoza, one of the assistant principals receiving a notice, said the reduction will prove to be both a financial and professional setback for those who do not receive an administrative position next year.

He said that he, like other administrators, will now wait and watch as the end of this school year draws near.

As for morale, Mendoza said, "We'll see tomorrow when the district employees as a whole find out."

Tracey said the consolidation of the two continuation schools had been predicted and did not come as a shock to administrators or students.

Ken Simmons, a parent of a Mountain High student, said the prospect of that school's program coming to an end is discouraging for parents and students.

"An awful lot of parents want to send their kids to Mountain High," he told board members. "I feel strongly that philosophical or administrative changes would greatly affect the children."

Martin Balding, a former Alta Loma High teacher and now the district's energy conservation specialist, said the reductions will also have effects elsewhere.

Police chief drops out of sheriff's race

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

At the end of the month, Upland Police Chief Coy Estes will formally disband a campaign committee formed last year when he was seriously considering running for county sheriff.

Estes said that at the same time he will fully refund all campaign contributions, making up the difference for expenditures — $195 was spent on his behalf — out of his own pocket.

"I feel strongly that people contributed to me, and I wouldn't feel right about contributing on my own to any other campaign," Estes said when asked about his campaign surplus.

The closing out of the committee and the refunds coincide with the last campaign financial statement due from Estes on Jan. 31, but he took himself out of the race months ago.

Estes said he made his decision not to run for sheriff in early July. At one time, he had tentatively planned to announce his candidacy at a reception in June, but he canceled that event.

He said he approved formation of the campaign committee after being encouraged to run for sheriff by a variety of people in the West End.

The committee received contributions totaling $1,800 in just a few days last May when he called for a halt on further contributions.

Estes said he was still undecided about running at that point and needed to make a decision before putting the committee members and others through more work.

"I was really encouraged by the tremendous amount of support in the West End and county-wide," he said.

He said the "bottom line" was that he had spent his entire law enforcement career in the Upland Police Department and was happy with the department and his position as chief.

Like other police chiefs in the county, Estes also would have been pursuing a job that pays less than his current position. The sheriff's salary, along with those of other county elected officials, has, in effect, been frozen by a charter amendment. Estes said financial considerations played no role in his decision.

He added that he will stay neutral.

Forms available for agricultural scholarships

High school and college students with a background in agriculture who live in California or Arizona are eligible to apply for scholarships to be awarded for the 1982-83 academic year by the A.W. Bodine-Sunkist Memorial Scholarship Program.

Ralph E. Bodine, chairman of the scholarship program committee, said applicants may be high school students entering college next year, continuing or transfer students, or graduate students.

To be eligible, a student must have family or personal involvement in agricultural production or services and demonstrate financial need, according to Bodine.

An applicant must plan to pursue a course of study leading to a degree, but there is no restriction as to the field of study. The applicant must be enrolled in or have an application pending at an accredited college or university for the next school year.

Depending on the financial condition of the applicant's family and the college costs to be incurred, scholarships will range from $1,000 to $3,000.

Bodine said scholarship awards are renewable annually for up to four years, with renewal based on a yearly review. Good academic standing and normal progress are required.

Under the program, no specific number of scholarships is awarded in a year. Bodine said selection is based on a number of factors, including grade point average, College Board test scores, a 500-word essay on the student's background and career goals, and recommendations and references.

The scholarship program honors the late Arthur W. Bodine, former vice chairman of the board of Sunkist Growers, Inc., and a long-time director who died in 1977.

A resident of Phoenix, Bodine was prominent nationally in the fresh fruit and vegetable industry. He was active in a number of agricultural organizations.

The application deadline for 1982-83 scholarships is Feb. 26. Anyone interested in the program should write to A.W. Bodine-Sunkist Memorial Scholarship Administrator, c/o Sunkist Growers, Inc., P.O. Box 7888, Van Nuys, CA 91409.

In addition, applications are available at Sunkist-affiliated packinghouses located throughout the citrus-growing areas of California and Arizona.

Retail sales increase wiped out by high inflation rate

Ten valley cities recorded retail sales of $377,026,000 during the summer months of June, July and August, but a 12.1 percent inflation rate knocked out the 10.3 percent increase in sales.

The State Board of Equalization reported that the inflation rate in California had declined for five consecutive quarters until last summer.

Goods and services which cost $100 in 1967, the base period established by the California Price Index, were priced at $281.90 in the summer of 1981.

Pomona continued as the retail sales leader in the valley, not counting the inflation rate, with sales up 6 percent to $90,621,000.

Ontario was second with sales totaling $86,570,000, a 17 percent increase.

Following are retail sales figures for the third quarter of 1981 and percent of change for the 10 valley cities: (in thousands of dollars) Chino up 11 percent to $29,209; Claremont up 13 percent to $13,062; La Verne up 8 percent to $13,682; Montclair up 6 percent to $61,829; Ontario up 17 percent to $86,570; Pomona up 6 percent to $90,621; Rancho Cucamonga up 19 percent to $21,806; San Dimas down 4 percent to $10,037; Upland up 9 percent to $48,179; and Walnut up 12 percent to $2,031.

Talkradio host to be guest speaker

Bill Jenkins, host of KABC Talkradio's "Open Mind" program, will speak at a meeting of the Press Club of Southern California, on Wednesday, Jan. 27, at 7 p.m., at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association's community room, 2111 Bonita Ave., La Verne.

His topic will be "Talkradio — the New Wave of Journalism." The public is invited to attend at no charge and refreshments will be served, according to Barbara Tarshes, club president.

After working in various radio jobs since the age of 13, Jenkins moved to Los Angeles in 1967, working with radio stations KFI and KGBS and finally KABC Talkradio, where he created "Open Mind," an intriguing look at the world of New Age thinking: UFO's, Reincarnation, Psychotronics and much more.

Since the show began, Jenkins has brought internationally known personalities to talk about these areas. "The point is to present new information from the most credible sources of the highest integrity and let the audience be the judge," he says.

Vocational Education Week set

A resolution acknowledging Feb. 7-13 as Vocational Education Week will be included in the agenda of the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program Commission meeting on Jan. 21.

The theme selected for this year's Vocational Education Week is "Know How Vocational Education Serves the Nation." Know how is that magical combination of knowledge and skill that makes it possible for an individual to be a productive member of society. It is what vocational education builds in those it serves.

Our technological nation depends on know how to keep moving forward. We want the public to understand how vocational education serves both the needs of the nation's citizens by providing the know how they need to find good jobs and the needs of business and industry by providing skilled workers with the know how to do jobs. Know how is the key. Workers need it; business and industry need it. Vocational Education provides it.

For the past ten years the Baldy View Regional Occupational Program (ROP) has been providing quality vocational education to young adults in our community. ROP is a co-operative program of Bonita, Chaffey, Chino, Claremont and Pomona School Districts serving approximately 6,000 high school students per year. There are more than 40 job training classes preparing young people with skills necessary of entry level employment. Many of these classes are based right in the community in department stores, fire stations, restaurants, hospitals, banks/savings and loan, floral shops, etc.

The Baldy View Regional Occupational Program salutes the students, parents, school administrators, and, especially, the business community sponsors for contributing to the success of vocational education.

Apartment for handicapped draw protests; study ordered

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Staff Writer

The Claremont City Council last week accepted blame for "lack of communication with concerned neighbors" and continued a public hearing on the construction of apartments for handicapped in a single-family neighborhood until Feb. 9.

Protests from many of the neighbors were made at the hearing.

In the meantime, the council told City Manager Len Wood to establish a group composed of representatives of the neighborhood, handicapped groups, the developers and others concerned as soon as possible.

This group is to delve into some of the unanswered or conflicting statements and issues about the proposed project and return to the council in two weeks with a "progress report."

The hearing was requested by Bruce and Louise Ehresman to protest a conditional use permit granted by the Planning Commission on Dec. 1 to allow the construction of 24 units of housing for the handicapped at 1700 N. Towne Ave., in a neighborhood zoned for single-family homes.

The hearing attracted an overflow crowd in the Council Chamber and lasted well over two hours. The audience was about evenly divided on the project.

Council members are in agreement that housing for physically handicapped should be constructed on the site. They were also in agreement that many questions concerning parking, lighting, privacy and maintenance have not been answered.

Mayor Eleanor Cohen said: "There have been holes in our process and I feel the neighbors have been overlooked. We wouldn't want handicapped persons to move into a neighborhood where they weren't welcome."

"We need to get many questions which have arisen tonight answered. We must make an effort to work out problems with the people."

Councilman Sheldon Wellins was critical of both city staff and the developer, Greater Pomona Valley

Housing Development Corp. for "vague" answers to questions regarding two-story buildings for handicapped, adequacy of parking, who could live in the apartments and other questions.

"No matter what answer I get, it's 'I can't tell you what will eventually happen' and there are too many oversimplifications," Wellins said.

Councilman Stuart Wahrenbrock said, "We have taken years to study problems for the benefit of the residents. While people have not all walked away in agreement, at least they had been able to share in the decisions. Not one neighbor within a quarter of a mile has supported this project. The council is at fault for not involving the neighbors."

He added, "I, too, am concerned that we can't look at plans and make decisions about the project."

According to Bill Wojtkowski, community development director, apartments, churches or schools can be built in areas zoned for single-family homes if a conditional use permit is granted. He noted that the Lutheran church already located to the south of the property was constructed with a CUP.

The proposed apartments are designed to have 30 parking spaces, one of the objections of the neighbors. Wojtkowski admitted that if standard apartments were to be constructed on the site, probably 46 parking spaces would be required.

Marilyn Sweeney, a neighbor, said it should be made clear to the council that the objections were not to the occupants, but to the fact that apartments would cause noise, light pollution and traffic problems in the residential area.

Speaking on behalf of the housing development corporation, Robert Kelley said it was uncertain exactly how many units would be constructed.

"We have a federal grant for exactly $1,445,000.

Bowers, baritone and Barbara Rogers, piano will

We don't know all the details nor can we guarantee all the features. While the maximum we can build is 24 units, we might build less if we don't have enough money," Kelley said.

Kelley earlier told the Planning Commission that the units were to house adults from 18 to 24 seeking to establish their independence. At the council, he said such a restriction was not legal.

Master gardener

By JUDY GARRETT

Dear Master Gardener:

Q. We plan to plant a variety of fruit trees and need to know how far apart the trees should be spaced.

A. Space fruit trees according to the expected size of the full-grown tree. Peaches and plums require 18 to 24 feet, avocados need 20 to 30 feet, citrus is usually planted 22 to 24 feet apart. Dwarf and small fruit trees like the Meyer lemon need only a small area in which to grow.

Q. What is the advantage of planting roses bareroot? I usually buy new rose varieties for my garden in pots. When should they be planted?

A. Container grown roses do have the advantage of allowing you to plant roses anytime from spring to fall. However, bareroot planting is considered better since it gives the roots a chance to start growth before the bush starts growing leaves. It is also less expensive. Bareroot planting is done during the dormant season, which for our area is usually January and February.

Q. How much nitrogen do wood ashes supply to our garden?

A. Wood ashes contain no nitrogen. In general, unleached ashes contain five to ten percent potash, one to two percent phosphate, 50 to 70 percent limestone equivalent, and traces of other nutrients. Ashes that have been leached by exposure to rain contain much less potash and lime.

Q. This is my first time growing cauliflower. Why do the leaves need tying and when should it be done?

A. Tying the leaves around the heads of cauliflower blanches the heads to keep them pure white and should be done as soon as the heads appear. Rubber bands often work well on the slick leaves without damaging the leaves. Be sure you tie up enough leaves to completely cover the head, keeping out as much light as possible.

Q. I have been looking for a shrub to screen out a chain link fence. Is waxleaf privet a good choice? How close together should they be planted?

A. Waxleaf privet makes an excellent screen since it is quick growing, drought tolerant and grows well in sun or shade. Ideal spacing between plants is six to eight feet. For quick screening, plants can be set in at half that distance with the idea of removing every other one in a few years. Faster growth will occur if the soil is amended with organic matter at planting time. New shrubs should be watered regularly the first year and mulched to conserve moisture during the summer.

Problems with your plants? Send your gardening questions to UC Master Gardeners, Cooperative Extension, 21150 Box Springs Road, Riverside 92507. It is impossible to respond individually to letters but the most common questions will be answered in this column.

Teacher shows first exhibit

By BOB NAGEY
Staff Writer

For 35 years Agnes Stewart has been promoting the art of other people, first as a high school art teacher and then as a volunteer gallery chairman for the Chino Art Association.

This month Mrs. Stewart has her own first full exhibit of 20 paintings along the walls of the Chino City Hall. Once it comes down she will retire from her post to be succeeded by Betty Anderson, the new gallery chairman.

"I'm just too busy," she explained. "Ever since I finished teaching in 1972, I've been getting busier. It's time to reconsolidate my efforts."

Not that she is worn out; far from it. She is in good health, looking good and "feeling better every day," and though past 70 she goes out to the golf course regularly and carries her golf clubs on her shoulders for exercise.

Moreover, she travels frequently, near and far. Not long ago she took a three-week painting tour of the Orient under the direction of Milford Zornes, former art professor at Pomona College.

But the job she has been doing at the City Hall has become too time consuming. And she wants to have more time to paint.

After all, a painter should do her thing, even if it is interrupted by 30 years of showing others how to do it.

It's been a long time since 1943 when Mrs. Stewart accepted a position at Chino High School as an art teacher. She estimates that more than 6,000 students had gone through her classes, some of them becoming painters, others connoisseurs and gallery owners in the past three decades.

There was a slight lull when she retired from that post, but shortly after the Chino Civic Center was completed in 1975, she was approached by Councilwoman Eileen Carter with a request to adorn the bare walls of the new building.

From that point on, Mrs. Stewart took on the responsibility of arranging art displays for others, making the arrangements, scheduling the displays, putting them together, and frequently hanging them and taking them down.

"I never had enough paintings for a full display," she said. "While I was teaching I did paint some, but gave them away. Afterward, I placed a number of my paintings into local offices on a kind of permanent loan. It wasn't until last summer that I accumulated enough."

Mrs. Stewart paints in water colors, and specializes in historical landscapes and floral arrangements. Six of her historical paintings, depicting old Chino buildings and landmarks will be given to the Chino Historical Society.

But before that happens, she wants the public to see what she can do. So for the month of January the paintings will hang on the walls of the City Hall, proving that she who teaches also can.

Dairymen want property rezoned

By BOB NAGEY
Staff Writer

The first concrete attempt to break the 17,000-acre agricultural preserve south and east of Chino since its inception 16 years ago has been filed with the San Bernardino County Planning Department.

Neil Kasbergen and Albert Briano, two dairy operators, have filed applications for an amendment to the county's General Plan that would permit them and their associates to develop their properties for residential and commercial uses.

The documents were filed under a law that took effect Jan. 1. This provides dairymen with a one-time opportunity to get out of their state contracts during the next five months with a minimum of penalty.

But to qualify, the dairymen had to file their applications for the zone change by Dec. 31. Only Briano and Kasbergen met that deadline.

The two parcels they qualified amount to 429 acres in the northeast section of the preserve.

But L. D. King, the engineer whose staff prepared the applications, said more requests for zone changes are coming in the spring from dairymen who have no contract with the state.

Kasbergen's application is for 304 acres. This includes 40 acres owned by Case Zwart and 20 acres owned by M.L. and Raymond La Brucherie.

It is bounded by Riverside Drive on the north, Schaefer Avenue on the south, Archibald Avenue on the west and generally Turner Avenue on the east.

The Briano application is in behalf of his own dairy plus property owned by Peter Hettinga, Harold and John Shelby, James Shelby, James W. Beahm, Earl A. Musser and Neil Kasbergen.

The area is bounded by Riverside Drive on the north, Chino Avenue on the south, Grove Avenue on the east and Bon View Avenue on the west.

Both sections had to be contiguous to residential or commercial property to qualify for consideration. The property borders Riverside Drive in Ontario.

Marvin Krieger, a senior planner who has been conducting a county-sponsored survey of the agricultural preserve, said Briano and Kasbergen will now need to pay back some of the money they saved over the years by being part of the preserve. They will have to apply for cancellation of their contracts under the Williamson Act that protects the preserve.

After that is done, the two requests will be presented to the San Bernardino County Planning Commission, probably in June, and then to the Board of Supervisors next summer.

They will also have to submit a plan of how they intend to develop their parcels if the zone change is granted.

The two parcels are located in a 3,300-acre corridor between Riverside Drive and Schaefer Avenue where many of the preserve's smaller and older dairies are located.

The dairymen claim those operations have become unprofitable. They want to sell their land and move elsewhere. But under the general plan which zones all property agricultural east of Fern Street and south of Riverside Drive, the land can only be used for agriculture.

A private study authorized by those operators indicated last month that the time was proper for secession.

That study, prepared by King, is slowly winding its way toward a decision by the Board of Supervisors. In past years, the board has been reluctant to break up the county's largest industry.

Supervisor Robert Townsend, who has been opposed to any break in the preserve, said he was "somewhat surprised that only two requests had been filed."

"I had fully expected some operators along Fern Avenue to also apply since they are also adjacent to commercial and residential developments," he added.

Townsend contended it was "good to have the parcels concentrated in two segments. It will be easier to handle them than a salt and pepper request from all parts of the preserve."

But he declined to take a position on the two applications. He said he would study the requests before they came to the supervisors.

Indications are that if the two General Plan amendment applications are granted the property owners would seek annexation to Ontario.

Chairman appointed for 1982

The Claremont Committee of the Pomona Valley Council of Churches has elected Claremont's youngest senior minister, the Rev. Calvin Thomsen, 29, as its 1982 general chairperson. Mr. Thomsen is pastor of North Hills Seventh Day Adventist Church. Elected as vice-chairperson was the Rev. Stephen Williams, associate minister of Claremont Presbyterian Church. Dr. G. Merrill Lenox, minister of communications for Claremont United Methodist Church was elected secretary.

A native of Los Angeles, Mr. Thomsen was educated at Loma Linda University and at Andrews University Theological Seminary and is now finishing work on a doctor of ministry degree at Fuller Theological Seminary. He was president of his college campus religious organization, has worked as a radio announcer and has led his present church to a substantial growth in membership and attendance. His wife, Marilyn, heads the Communications Department of the Southern California Conference of the Seventh Day Adventist church. The Thomsens have traveled extensively in Europe, the middle East, Russia, India, China, Japan and Thailand.

The Claremont Committee which Mr. Thomsen will now serve as chairperson consists of the ministers and appointed lay delegates of most of the Claremont Churches, Catholic and Protestant. It serves as a channel through which the Pomona Valley Council of Churches carries on its projects in the Claremont area and through which the churches administers several programs in which only the Claremont community is involved. It sponsors the annual Good Friday and Thanksgiving services and promotes such Valleywide projects as the Walk for Hunger, housing developments for low-income and handicapped persons, efforts in behalf of world peace and workshops on Christian Education, worship and Social Concerns.

SCORE helps to favor business success

By MARGE GROSS
Staff Writer

"Figures vary, but about 50 percent of those starting a new business go out of business within the first year," Charles D. Stillinger of SCORE (Service Corps of Retired Executives) said in a recent interview.

SCORE is a volunteer service group of retired business owners and executives who give of their time, expertise, knowledge and skills to advise those going into business or those already in business, but experiencing difficulties.

SCORE and ACE (Active Corps of Executives) are supported by the United States Small Business Administration. Both groups are designed to provide free business counseling services.

Currently, SCORE is seeking additional volunteers and a recruitment meeting is planned for Feb. 1 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at the Pomona Chamber of Commerce, 260 S. Garey Ave., Pomona, the official headquarters of the group.

Any retired businessman or woman who is interested in volunteering his/her services to counsel prospective businessmen or women, or those already established but floundering, are invited to attend.

"If a new business survives the first year, there will be 75 percent who go out by the end of the second year," Stillinger said.

The reasons, he explained, are either there's no market for the service, or the lack of good management.

Members of SCORE meet with those requesting help through counseling sessions set up at the chambers of commerce in the communities, particularly Pomona and Ontario. There are times, Stillinger said, when it is difficult to counsel in the offices.

"Such as a restaurant," he said. "It is better to make a field trip to the restaurant where the adviser can observe the possible problems ... such as not being clean, poor service ..."

The SCORE volunteer said the majority of new businesses opened are in the field of retailing or merchandising of "one kind or another." All ranges or clothing are the major types of businesses opened. Others popular are beauty parlors or buying into a pre-school or nursery.

The ratio of those going into business are two women to eight men.

"Some know nothing but want to be in business," Stillinger said. He did cite the example of one young man who had researched his business (something to do with automobiles) down to the smallest matter. "It was extremely well done," Stillinger said. "He was young and organized, but his problem was financing."

At this time, SCORE needs volunteers in most avenues of business experience ... "We particularly need someone in public relations," he said.

SCORE members are available to speak before meetings or to take part in seminars. SCORE also can provide a variety of printed material for prospective businessmen or women.

OIA traffic increases in December

Ontario International Airport's passenger lists grew a whopping 33 percent in December. "This is the largest increase, percentage-wise, in scheduled air traffic since December, 1969," Airport Manager Robert E. Quincey said.

The airport handled 164,791 passengers last month, compared to 123,770 in December 1980, according to Los Angeles Department of Airports statistics.

The previous 1969 record can't hope to rival 1981 in raw numbers, only 61,182 passengers used scheduled flights in December, 1969.

The airport's 1981 total showed an 11.1 percent decrease in passengers though. About 1.6 million passengers used OIA compared to 1.8 million last year.

"Our supplemental passenger figures set a new record as well," Quincey said. He said 5,717 non-scheduled passengers used OIA in December, 52 percent more than the 3,752 who went through the local facility during the same month last year.

"Most of these folks were Iowa football fans attending the Rose Bowl game," Quincey said.

The year's total of supplemental passengers showed a 16.4 percent increase in use, up from 9,254 passengers in all of 1980 to 10,770 this year.

Fog closed other Southern California airports several times in December, resulting in a record 46 percent increase in the number of alternate passengers using OIA, Quincey said. A total of 21,078 passengers were diverted through the local airport, up from last December's 14,156.

"It's more than any other month in the airport's history," Quincey said. "This can be attributed to the fact that 1981 is the first year we've been able to accommodate the wide-body jets during foggy weather — and the wide-bodies hold two to three times as many passengers as the aircraft in previous alternates."

Alternate totals for 1981 were up 6.3 percent, from 24,513 passengers last year to 26,065.

Air cargo through OIA is still setting records, according to Assistant Manager Michael DiGirolamo. He said year-end figures indicate 19.2 million pounds of cargo went through the airport, 8 percent more than the previous record of 17.1 million pounds set in 1979 and 101 percent better than last year's 9.5 million pounds.

"And as for the month of December, the figures are overwhelming," he said. Di Girolamo said 7.2 million pounds of air freight went through OIA in December alone, up 1,036 percent from the 641,641 pounds in December, 1980.

"In terms of air cargo, the month of December, 1981 is better than most years in the airport's history," he said.

Most of the increase in freight was attributed to new regular flights into the airport by United Parcel Service.

Air taxi, military and general aviation use at the airport all showed decreases in December. Air taxi landings and takeoffs dropped 43 percent from 1,913 flights in December 1980 to 1,090 flights last month; military flights dropped 19.3 percent from 871 to 703 and general aviation decreased 48 percent from 7,996 to 4,113.

The full year totals in air taxi showed an increase but military and general aviation showed decreases in use. Air taxi rose 14.2 percent from 17,095 to 19,520; military dropped 1 percent from 9,076 to 9,002 and general aviation dropped 15.1 percent, from 101,808 to 86,582.

Di Girolamo said the end of the year is traditionally the busiest time at any airport, but local officials are hoping the increases in passenger and cargo use signal "the beginning of a long and profitable trend at Ontario International Airport."

Scholarship recipients are revealed

Recipients of the annual scholarship fund of the Ontario Community Hospital Auxiliary were announced during a recent dinner dance held at the Rancho Cucamonga Elks Club.

The auxiliary gave three, not two, scholarships this year to employees of Ontario Community Hospital because of the excellence of the applicants, an auxiliary spokeswoman said.

Receiving $500 each and introduced by Janet La-Masurier, auxiliary president, were Marcia Baldwin, Rita Carroll and Velma Gilbert.

Baldwin is employed as a quality assurance coordinator and has been with the local hospital since 1975. She also is attending the University of Phoenix in classes held at the hospital. Her goal is a bachelor of science degree and her major is health services administration.

Carroll, an emergency room supervisor, has been associated with OCH since 1974. She also is attending the University of Phoenix classes at the hospital with a major in health services administration. She is pursuing a bachelor of science degree.

Gilbert started employment with the hospital in April 1981. She is family counselor and therapist in the renewal unit of the hospital and is attending Chapman College at Norton Air Force Base near San Bernardino. She is majoring in counseling psychology and hopes to obtain a psychology degree in counseling.

The scholarship fund is provided through the Ella Thompson Memorial Fund that was established to honor Mrs. Thompson, wife of a former hospital administrator.

The auxiliary also presented a $5,000 check to John Packard, current hospital administrator. This money was earmarked for the cardiopulmonary resuscitation program that is offered to all community members at no charge; the patient education program for a video-recorder-player; and to the scholarship fund.

Mrs. LeMasurier invites new members to join the OCH Auxiliary and asks interested people to call her at 984-8635.

San Francisco Forty Niners

BOWL

2 Just call this Walsh's Super Bowl

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — Call it the Bill Walsh Bowl. The San Francisco coach is, perhaps more than anyone else, responsible not only for the 49ers' presence in Sunday's National Football League championship game, but for the Cincinnati Bengals' presence, too.

It was, after all, Walsh who molded Ken Anderson into one of the league's premier passers during his tenure (1967-75) as Cincinnati's quarterback coach.

What he did for the Bengals then he has done for the 49ers now, developing young Joe Montana into a star quarterback.

So Walsh's proteges will be calling the signals in this most unique Super Bowl.

It is, for starters, the first Super Bowl to be played in a snow-belt city (albeit indoors), in front of more than 80,000 fans who will pay at least $40 apiece (scalping could double or triple the legal price) to be part of this Silverdome spectacle.

It is also only the second Super Bowl (excluding the first one, of course) in which both entries are newcomers. In the third one, the American Football League gained a measure of respect thanks to the New York Jets' 16-7 victory over Baltimore.

And it is the first Super Bowl involving a team which in the span of one year has risen from the depths of a losing record. In this case, both teams have done so. San Francisco and Cincinnati both were 6-10 in 1980.

In 1981 the Bengals were 12-4, the American Conference's winningest team and the AFC's Central Division champion for the first time since 1973. And in 1981 the 49ers were 13-3, the best record in the NFL, and the National Conference's Western Division champions for the first time since 1972.

The Bengals and 49ers played each other during the 14th Sunday of the 1981 regular season, San Francisco's defense forcing six turnovers and the 49ers winning 21-3 in Cincinnati.

Montana passed for two touchdowns (15 yards to Dwight Clark and four yards to Bill Ring) and ran a yard for the 49ers' third TD. He completed 23 of 37 passes for 187 yards against the Cincinnati defense. Anderson was intercepted twice before being shaken up and leaving early in the second half. He hit 11 of 20 passes for 97 yards and replacement Jack Thompson completed 10 of 18 attempts for 114 yards and an interception.

All those numbers, from the score on down, could mean absolutely nothing, of course. During the 12th week of the 1980 season, the Philadelphia Eagles sacked Oakland quarterback Jim Plunkett eight times and beat the Raiders 10-7. Nine Sundays later, on Jan. 25, 1981, in the Louisiana Superdome, Plunkett threw three touchdown passes and the Raiders won the Super Bowl 27-10.

In 1977, the only other time the Super Bowl entries met twice, the Dallas Cowboys beat Denver 14-6 during the regular season, then beat them again for the NFL title. Again, the score was 27-10. And again the game was at the Superdome.

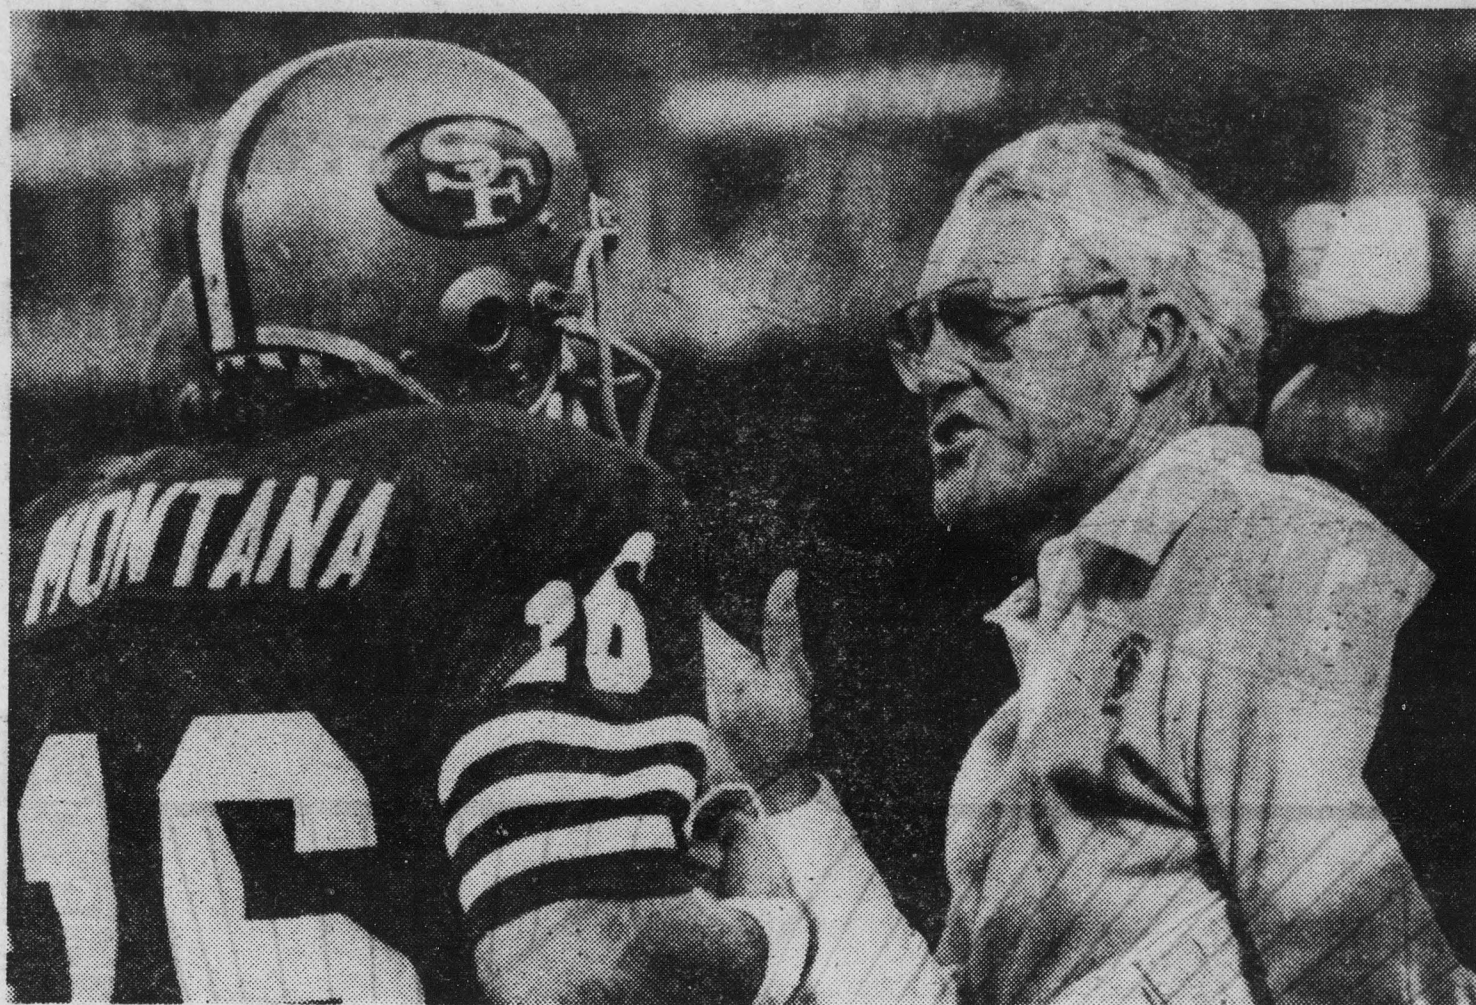

The Silverdome doesn't hold the fondest of memories for the 49ers. They've never won in it. In three tries, they've lost 33-14 (1978), 17-13 (1980) and 24-17 (opening day in 1981). But, then, they were playing the Detroit Lions, not the Bengals. Cincinnati, incidentally, hasn't played in Detroit since the Silverdome opened in 1975.

Walsh and his counterpart, Forrest Gregg, approach this game from vastly different directions.

Walsh never played pro football. He went from college (he majored in education and was an end at San Jose State) to high school coaching, obtaining a master's degree along the way. Within three years he was an assistant coach in college, first at California, then at Stanford, before moving to assistant's jobs in the pro ranks (Oakland, 1966; Cincinnati, 1967-75; San Diego, 1976). He returned as Stanford's head coach in 1977 and, in 1979, was lured back to the pros as the 49ers' coach and general manager.

He is a tactician, but with a flair for the dramatic. And he displays a relaxed, almost casual, attitude compared with Gregg's disciplinarian style.

"I've developed a system of football that has been unique," Walsh said after the 49ers won the NFC title with a thrilling 20-17 victory over the

Silver-haired Bill Walsh (top, right), seen talking strategy with quarterback Joe Montana, earned a spot in this year's Super Bowl as head coach of the San Francisco 49ers. But not long ago, Walsh was an assistant under Paul Brown (lower, right) with the Cincinnati Bengals. The 49ers meet the Bengals in Super Bowl XVI.

Dallas Cowboys. "Obviously I've had success with my offensive formulations and the development of quarterbacks. I think I'm as expert as anyone coaching football today — plus I may have an artistic ability that adds a certain flair to what I do."

Gregg, a member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame, played college ball at Southern Methodist, then was schooled by the pro game's toughest taskmaster, Vince Lombardi, for whom the Super Bowl trophy is named.

Gregg was a tackle on the Green Bay teams which won the first two Super Bowl games, then was released by the Packers after the 1970 season. He was lured back into uniform in 1971 by Tom Landry, when the Dallas offensive line was being decimated by injuries. As a result, Gregg wound up wearing a third Super Bowl ring when the Cowboys beat Miami for the NFL title. Then he retired for good as a player.

During 1972-74 he was an assistant coach, first at San Diego, then at Cleveland, before becoming the Browns' head coach. After the team went 3-11, 9-5 and 6-7, he resigned with one game left in the 1977 season. He rejoined San Diego as an assistant in 1978, then became head coach with Toronto of the Canadian Football League in 1979, where the Argonauts posted a 5-11 record.

The next year he was the head man at Cincinnati, where the Bengals had foundered under the leadership of Bill Johnson and Homer Rice.

"When he arrived, the club desperately needed discipline and direction," said veteran linebacker Jim LeClair. "He has provided both. He has brought us together. A lot of it is the force of his personality. He demands a lot."

And Cris Collinsworth, the Bengals' rookie wide receiver, said: "We have a killer instinct because this team is so much of an expression of Forrest Gregg." And the light-hearted Collinsworth added, perhaps only half in jest: "He's so intense that sometimes you wonder if he's ever had any fun in his whole life."

Statistically, the teams present opposite numbers.

The Bengals were No. 2 in total offense in the AFC in 1981, the 49ers were No. 2 in defense in the NFC. Cincinnati was No. 4 in overall defense in the AFC, San Francisco was No. 5 in overall offense in the NFC.

In some areas, the teams bear remarkable similarities.

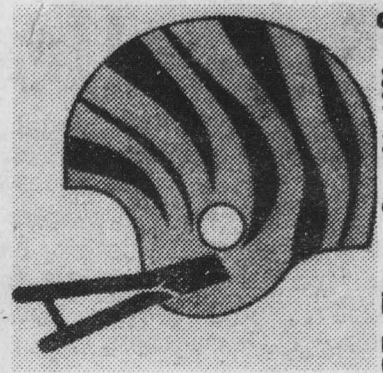

Anderson, an 11-year veteran upon whom awards rained in 1981 (The Associated Press Most Valuable Player and Offensive Player of the Year and NFL passing champion, to name a few), completed 62.6 percent of his passes for 3,754 yards. Montana, a third-year pro who won NFC passing honors, completed 63.7 percent of his attempts for 3,565 yards. But Anderson had 29 touchdown passes to Montana's 19 and just 10 interceptions to Montana's 12.

Anderson's favorite receivers during the season were tight end Dan Ross, with 71 receptions for 910 yards, and Collinsworth, with 67 for 1,009. Dwight Clark, who made the leaping, last-minute touchdown catch that beat Dallas in the NFC title game, was Montana's No. 1 man with 85 for 1,105 yards in 1981. Freddie Solomon, who caught the first of Montana's three TD passes in that game, added 59 receptions for 969 yards during the regular season.

Neutral scouting report: best teams meet for title

They are the two finest teams in football. The San Francisco 49ers are the only team to win 15 games this season. And the Cincinnati Bengals are the only other team to win as many as 14 games.

No wild card team slipping its way through the playoffs. No division champion with a 9-7 record getting through the Super Bowl. The Bengals and 49ers won their divisions going away, with convincing victories over others with similar Super Bowl aspirations.

So in the Silverdome on Sunday, it will be a matchup of the best against the best, two teams who have reached the pinnacle of pro football — the Super Bowl — for the first time.

By all measurements, Super Bowl XVI figures to be a classic. Ken Anderson, for years the precision quarterback in Cincinnati but lost the celebrity shuffle, now has a chance — perhaps his last — to win it all.

But it won't be easy. Joe Montana of San Francisco has established himself as the best two-minute quarterback in football, a Captain Comeback in the mold of Roger Staubach and Ken Stabler.

Anderson has the experience on Montana, but the Bengal quarterback doesn't have Bill Walsh, the offensive genius who has developed Montana into a Super Bowl quarterback in the latter's first full season as a starter.

SAN FRANCISCO ON OFFENSE — Expect the unexpected from the 49ers. Against the New York Giants in the NFC semifinals, Walsh lined up Clark and Freddie Solomon as running backs. Twice! Walsh's offensive wizardry has helped the 49ers improve from 2-14 to 6-10 to 13-3 in his three years as head coach. And to think that Paul Brown once passed over Walsh, then a Bengal assistant, and hired Bill Johnson as head coach. The 49ers have their greatest success passing, though they've run the ball half the time during the playoffs. San Francisco doesn't have a great running game, except on those rare days the passive Earl Cooper decides to run. He is built like a fullback (6-2, 227) but runs timidly like a little wide receiver. One of those rare days when Cooper ran hard was against Cincinnati on artificial grass in December. Since the Super Bowl will be played on imitation grass, Cooper might have another big game. Clark supposedly was too slow to play in the NFL, but he caught 85 passes this season plus the big one to beat Dallas. The 49ers offensive line receives little attention nationally, but they are one of the best aggregates in the NFL. Guard Randy Cross was voted all-pro while the other guard, John Ayers, nullified Law-ence Taylor and Randy White on successive Sundays.

CINCINNATI ON DEFENSE — All those years the Bengals were losing, they stock-piled No. 1 draft picks, especially in the defensive line. Eddie Edwards, Wilson Whitley and Ross Browner were first-rounders who developed into a championship front

Rozelle voices views on possible strike

4 The DAILY REPORT, Thurs., Jan. 21, 1982 Upland News-Ranchito Cucamonga Times-Montclair Tribune

(Precede: In his annual interview with Inside Football Report, Commissioner Pete Rozelle discusses what his role would be if the players decide to strike and also comments on potential anti-trust actions against the league, parity, "dirty football," and the new network TV contracts.)

Q — What are the odds on an NFL strike?

A — I don't even want to think of one.

Q — Because of the baseball strike that disenchanted baseball fans, won't both sides in the NFL dispute try to avert a strike?

A — I would hope so. The baseball strike turned people off, at least for one year. It remains to be seen what will happen now.

Q — Would the NFL suffer from a strike more than baseball did?

A — I think a strike in the NFL would have even a bigger impact on pro football than the baseball strike did on baseball. In the NFL, each game represents one-sixteenth of the season whereas in baseball each game represents one-one-hundred and sixty-second of the season. Five or six games out of our season would be much more damaging, it seems to me, than seven weeks out of the baseball season. Five or six games would be roughly one-third of our season, just as seven weeks was roughly one-third of the baseball season.

Q — If there's an NFL strike, would you as commissioner be able to do more to settle it than Bowie Kuhn apparently did as the baseball commissioner?

A — I sympathized with Bowie's problem in the baseball strike. He's taken a lot of bold steps in baseball, such as negating trades and putting a $400,000 ceiling on cash transactions. If an NFL team were to sell its first-round draft choice for, say, $1 million, I'd probably have to negate it, too. That's not the way the draft is supposed to work. If there is an NFL strike, I don't know that I'd be able to do much more than Bowie did. But the way the baseball strike went, I learned that I would certainly try to do something to settle it.

Q — How do you view the upcoming labor negotiations with the NFL Players Association?

A — I expect them to be tough, hard negotiations. Ed Garvey, the executive director of the NFL Players Association, keeps talking about how each team is making a $5 million profit each year but that's not the case.

Q — For the players to get 55 percent of the NFL's profits as salary, isn't it necessary for them to know what 100 percent is?

A — Of course, and the owners don't want them to know that. Garvey disregards a club's other expenses. But when the negotiations begin shortly after the Super Bowl, I won't be involved in them. Jack Donlan, the executive director of the NFL Management Council, will handle them.

Q — What other problems confront the NFL now?

A — The various anti-trust complaints against us. Over the last 15 years we've had about 50 anti-trust complaints. The best known one is the case involving Al Davis' plan to transfer the Oakland franchise to Los Angeles in defiance of the NFL constitution. But there are other cases — the people in Memphis who want an expansion team, the North American Soccer League that has appealed the ruling that the NFL won regarding a ban on owning a team in another sport.

Q — What's the crux of the NFL's argument?

A — We don't want an anti-trust exemption. We do want to be treated like any other company, but any other ONE company. Just because we have 28 teams doesn't mean the NFL is made up of 28 companies. Yes, the teams are rivals but they also are partners. We just wanted to be considered one company or a multi-division company.

Q — Is there too much parity in the NFL now?

A — Parity isn't what we're seeking. The entire idea behind the draft and the scheduling formula is to give a team a chance to improve itself quickly, if possible. That's what happened to the Giants and the Jets this season. At this time last year each was coming off a fifth-place finish in its division. But this season both made the playoffs.

Q — Did the scheduling formula give them an unfair advantage?

A — That's debatable. As a fifth-place team, each played four games with other fifth-place teams. But in those games, the Jets were only 2-2 (winning over the Giants and Green Bay, losing to Seattle twice) and the Giants were 1-3 (winning over Seattle but losing to Green Bay twice and the Jets). So neither team got fat off the other fifth-place teams.

Q — Is the National Conference better than the American now?

A — The National Conference had a 28-24 edge in games with American Conference teams this season. The previous seven seasons the AFC had the edge. Maybe the NFC's cycle is coming up now. We'll know more next season.

Q — Are you concerned about the complaints of "dirty" football by some players recently?

A — I'm not aware of any great upsurge. During the season 13 players were fined anywhere from $500 to $2,000 for unnecessary roughness and another three are under study. Some of them have involved flagrant use of the helmet. But when I talk to the players in these cases, I've tried to make them aware that when a player uses his helmet as a weapon, he's as susceptible to injury as the player he's hitting.

Q — Will your new TV contracts with the networks be established by the time of the league meetings?

A — I hope so. Our current contracts are up with the Super Bowl and the Pro Bowl and we have to get that settled so we know what our TV situation will be next season.

Q — Is the Pro Bowl likely to be dropped from the schedule?

A — It's possible. Its existence is part of the bargaining agreement with the NFL Players Association and it's possible that, in the labor negotiations, the Pro Bowl could be dropped.

Q — Do you foresee a college player, Herschel Walker of Georgia, for example, suing the NFL for the right to turn pro before his class graduates?

A — It could happen. I hope it doesn't happen, but it could happen. Basketball players turn pro as undergraduates, but basketball doesn't finance a college athletic program the way football does. If a star football player leaves a college to turn pro, his departure would hurt his college's athletic program a lot more than the departure of a basketball player would.

WHERE HE IS NOW

Raymond Berry: work ethic paid off in stardom

When he dropped the first pass ever thrown in his direction, the 20th-round draft choice "contemplated suicide."

"I never thought I'd get another chance," he recalls. "I thought that was it."

But Weeb Ewbank, trying to build the Baltimore Colts from scraps, saw something in the 22-year-old skinny kid from the Texas badlands. He kept Raymond Berry. The rest is history.

"I learned more from Raymond Berry than I ever did from any other player," says Don Shula, who played against Berry, then coached him.

"He was a technician. Years before anyone else, Raymond Berry took a close look at what a receiver should be, added to the ingredients and perfected the recipe."

"Raymond was as close to perfection as you could come," said longtime batterymate Johnny Unitas. "Raymond never broke a route. Once you knew him, you knew where he was going."

Not that football came easy for Raymond Berry. That is far from the truth. Berry lacked speed and size. He didn't earn a starting berth on the high school team coached by his father until he was a senior and played a year of junior college ball before being offered a partial scholarship by SMU.

With the Mustangs, he played as a defensive end and a blocking back. In his pre-professional career, Berry caught one touchdown pass in high school, another one at SMU. The Colts drafted him 20th; then again, they were drafting anyone they could.

"What saved Raymond Berry is the fact that we didn't have any receivers," says Colt defensive end great Gino Marchetti. "And Raymond didn't look like any seven-alarm fire, either. But he tried."

And tried, and tried. And before long his work ethic paid off. He stuck as a rookie in 1955. And when 1956 rolled around, he was on hand to catch the passes of a free agent named Unitas. Unitas-to-Berry was to become the single-most productive pass-catch combination in NFL history.

When he retired after the 1967 sea-line. Equally effective are the Bengals four linebackers — Bo Harris, Jim LeClair, Glenn Cameron and Reggie Williams. LeClair is one of the most active inside linebackers in football while Williams is the team's best blitzer. If the Bengals are vulnerable on defense, it's against the pass. They finished ninth in the conference. The linebackers are more run-oriented and the secondary is basically young. Ken Riley is in his 13th year, but Bobby Kemp, Louis Breeden and Bryan Hicks together have only seven years experience.

CINCINNATI ON DEFENSE — The Bengals have the accurate Anderson, who captured his third NFL passing title this season. The 31-year-old veteran has never looked better thanks to a combination of young and old receivers. Rookie Cris Collinsworth caught 67 passes, eight for touchdowns. But Isaac Curtis remains the team's most explosive receiver and Steve Kreider gets open as well as any one. Anderson's favorite target is tight end Dan Ross (71 catches), though the quarterback caught San Diego by surprise with touchdown passes to backup tight ends M.L. Harris and Don Bass. Cincinnati's offensive line is a powerhouse with all-pro Anthony Munoz (278), Mike Wilson (271), Max Montoya (275), Dave Lapham (262) and Blair Bush (252). Behind this mammoth line lives Pete Johnson, no midget himself at 250. Johnson is the best pure fullback in football. A force! Charles Alexander, the other running back, has never lived up to his college clippings.

SAN FRANCISCO ON DEFENSE — The 49ers have always been known for offense, with Tittle, McElhenny, Perry, Brodie and Washington rolling up yards. But the defense has been the strength of the team this season. Three defensive backs — Ronnie Lott, Eric Wright and Carlton Williamson — are rookies, but they haven't played like rookies, particularly Lott, an all-pro pick with four interception returns for touchdowns. The acquisitions of Fred Dean from San Diego and Jack Reynolds were equally significant. Dean gave the 49ers a pass rush while Reynolds gave stability and leadership to the linebacking corps. Big plays are the hallmark of San Francisco's defensive unit. The 49ers forced Pete Johnson to fumble twice in December. Lott, who give away 50 pounds to Johnson, forced one of them. No team in football hits harder than San Francisco. Williamson knocked both John Stallworth and Jim Smith out of the Pittsburgh game with clean hits. If the 49ers defense gets physical with Cincinnati, and it's allowed, then the Bengals are in trouble. A clue: the last time they met, the Bengals didn't score a touchdown.

Cincinnati offensive left tackle ANTHONY MUNOZ vs. San Francisco defensive right end FRED DEAN — This is the big matchup. Munoz is the man Johnson loves to run behind. Dean is the man the 49ers love to turn loose. If Munoz can neutralize Dean — no one can dominate him — then the Bengals have an important edge.

Cincinnati tight end DAN ROSS vs. San Francisco strong safety CARLTON WILLIAMSON — Anderson loves to throw passes to Ross as a means of ball control. Ross is a big target (6-4, 235) and Williamson is a hitter. It will be might vs. might.

Cincinnati running back PETE JOHNSON vs. San Francisco inside linebackers CRAIG PUKI and JACK REYNOLDS — Johnson is too big and strong to be stopped all day. He runs between the tackles and if he gets into the open, Puki and Reynolds must slow him down until help arrives. Mystifying, Remember Super Bowl XII?

DALLAS COWBOYS 27, DENVER BRONCOS 10 — This was the first Super Bowl to be played indoor in the brandnew Louisiana Superdome. Since this was their fourth Super Bowl appearance, to the Dallas Cowboys and Tom Landry all the hype was old hat.

Said Landry: "The reason I take on the appearance of being unemotional is that I don't believe you can be emotional and concentrate the way you must to be effective."

"When I see a great play from the sidelines, I can't cheer it. As a team we win by concentrating, by thinking. The players don't want to see me rushing around and screaming. They want to believe I know what I am doing."

Johnson carried just 12 times in the first game against the 49ers even though he averaged 7.2 yards per carry.

San Francisco running back EARL COOPER vs. Cincinnati inside linebackers GLENN CAMERON and JIM LeCLAIR — Cameron and LeClair aren't burners. Walsh will devise a play where he sends the speedy Cooper down the middle of the field with Cameron or LeClair in hot pursuit.

San Francisco quarterback JOE MONTANA vs. Cincinnati outside right linebacker REGGIE WILLIAMS — Williams plays on Montana's blind side, which makes blitzing all the more attractive. Williams has great speed and Montana will need eyes in the back of his head to avoid the Bengals' Dartmouth man.

San Francisco wide receiver DWIGHT CLARK vs. Cincinnati cornerbacks KEN RILEY and LOUIS BREEDEN — Clark gets open against everyone regardless of reputation and 40-yard dash times. He turned Dallas' Dennis Thurman in a complete circle. When he came out of it, Thurman had gone one way and Clark the other for a touchdown. Riley and Breeden must find a way to stay with Clark's Raymond Berry-like moves.

SPECIAL TEAMS — An interesting matchup. Cincinnati had the league's best punter in Pat McInally, while the 49ers barefooted Jim Miller tailed off over the last half of the season. 49er placekicker Ray Wersching is slightly more accurate than the Bengals Jim Breech.

Scouting report on San Francisco

Hope springs eternal for those National Football League coaches who have one foot on the unemployment line and the other on a banana peel following 6-10 seasons.

For the San Francisco 49ers and the Cincinnati Bengals, this season's two Super Bowl participants, are both coming off 6-10 campaigns in 1980. And if you want to go back a few more years, the Bengals had consecutive 4-12 seasons and the 49ers registered dismal back-to-back 2-14s.

As strange as it may sound, the 50-1 shot 49ers and 70-1 shot Bengals — that's the price Nevada oddsmakers hung out on the two teams making it to Super Bowl XVI way back in July — will now battle it out for pro football supremacy.

But neither team used revers gear to get to Michigan. The 49ers had the NFL's best regular season record of 13-3 while the Bengals tied the Dallas Cowboys for the runnerup mark at 12-4.

The two teams, however, took diverse paths to the Super Bowl. Cincinnati over the years has been making prudent No. 1 draft picks. Eleven number ones are on the roster, eight of whom are starters. Last season Cincinnati added a disciplinarian coach, Forrest Gregg.

The 49ers, on the other hand, have just four number one selections and bolstered their defense by signing free agent linebacker Jack Reynolds and trading a No. 2 draft choice to San Diego for designated pass rusher Fred Dean.

When the 49ers have the ball — Quarterback Joe Montana, the key to the 49er attack, didn't have one of his better passing days against the Cowboys. Even though he connected on 22 to 35 attempts for 286 yards, he also threw a season-high three interceptions. Don't expect that to happen in the Super Bowl. For openers, Coach Bill Walsh isn't overly fond of interceptions and he shared his feelings with the 49er quarterback. Secondly, San Francisco experienced considerable success throwing short, ball-control passes when it defeated the Bengals, 21-3, Dec. 6 at Riverfront Stadium. Montana completed 23 of 34 passes for only 187 yards, with 10 of those completions going to running backs — his longest success being a 20-yarder to wide receiver Dwight Clark.

Walsh has said all week that he expects fullback Earl Cooper, who seems to do better on artificial surfaces, to have a productive day. The 49ers should be stronger on offense this time because wide receiver Freddie Solomon, who missed the first Bengal game with a kidney bruise, is back at full strength. Solomon poses a deep threat and will help keep some of the double coverage away from Dwight Clark, who caught the game-winner against Dallas.

Conversely, Bengal defensive end Eddie Edwards didn't play in that first game. So Montana can expect more pressure from the Cincinnati pass rush. Two of San Francisco's three losses this season were to teams that use the 3-4 defense, like Cincinnati. Montana probably will throw deep early in an attempt to get the Bengals' quick linebackers to play a little looser.

When the 49ers are on defense — The 49ers, who play situation defense, stayed in their 3-4 alignment a little more than usual the last time they played Cincinnati, probably because Dean was still nursing a bruised sternum. Dean is 100 percent now and the defense seems to be coming up with new formations each week. The latest variation, which was used against the Cowboys, found the 49ers removing nose tackle Archie Reese and linebacker Craig Puki when they went to the 4-3 defense on second down and long. Lawrence Pillers came in at left defensive end, Jim Stuckey moved over to left tackle, Dwaine Board moved inside to right tackle and Dean entered at right end. Keena Turner, Jack Reynolds and Willie Harper remained at linebacker. When the 49ers go to their nickel, usually on third-and-long, Reynolds and Harper come out and are replaced by linebacker Bobby Leopold and cornerback Lynn Thomas. They also use six defensive backs on occasion, in which case Turner is removed and replaced by either Rick Gervais or Saladin Martin.

KEY MATCHUPS:

49er wide receiver DWIGHT CLARK vs. Bengal right cornerback KEN RILEY — Clark, bereft of great speed, continues to find the seam in opposing defenses. He's not afraid to go over the middle, but perhaps his greatest asset is that he senses when Montana is in trouble and comes back to the ball. Riley, the defensive leader of the Bengal secondary, will have his hands full with Clark, who caught six passes for 78 yards and one touchdown the last time they faced each other.

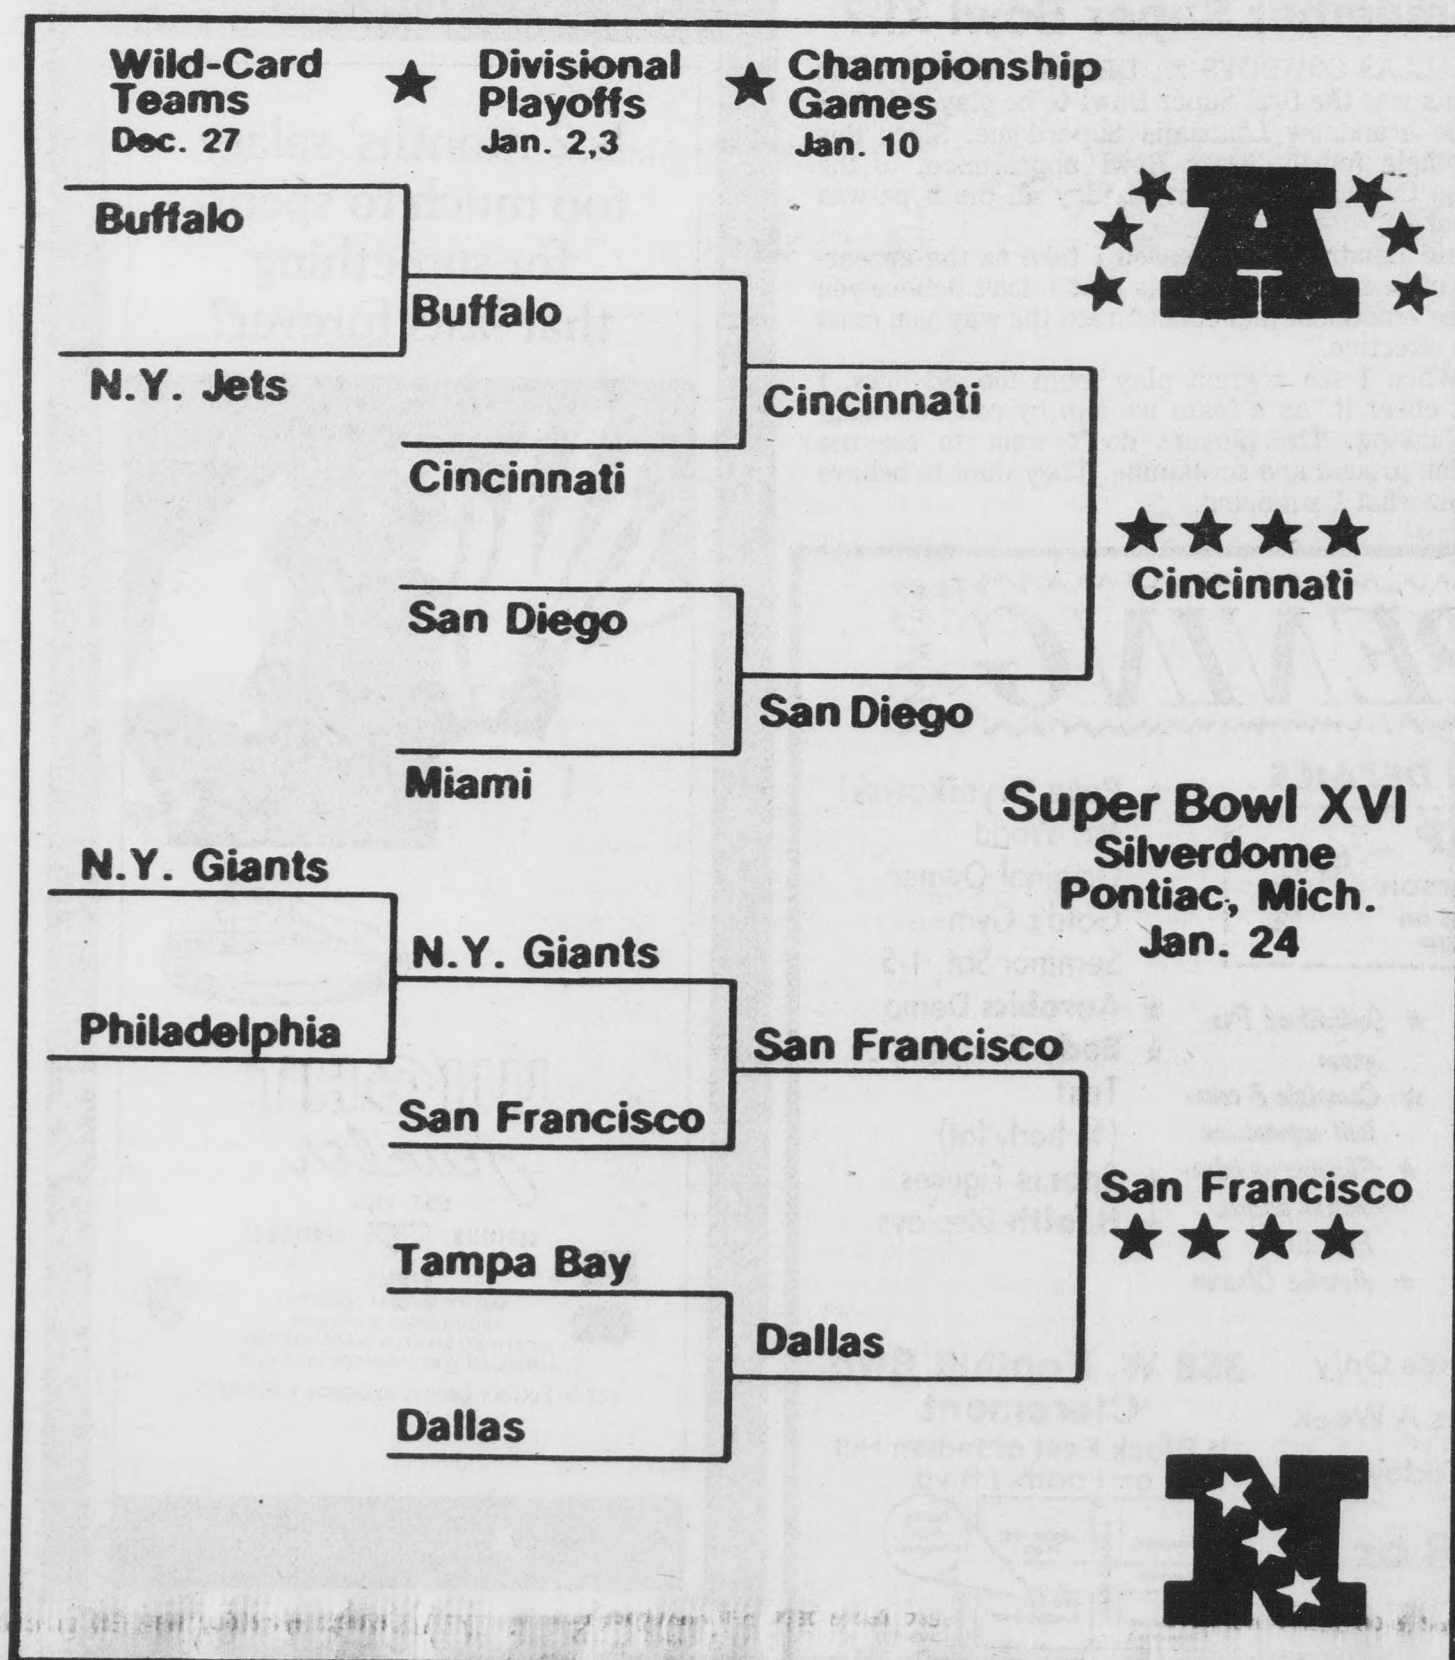

49er left offensive tackle DAN AUDICK vs. Bengal right defensive end ROSS BROWNER — Audick is probably the most improved 49er offensive lineman during the last part of the season, but that's because he had a long way to go. He still has problems against a quick man, like Browner. Harvey Martin beat Audick quite decisively during the first half in the NFC title game, but the 49er tackle was able to make an adjustment in the second half.

49er left offensive guard JOHN AYERS vs. Bengal right outside linebacker REGGIE WILLIAMS — As usual, Ayers' responsibility against the 3-4 defense will be to keep the right outside linebacker from blind-siding Montana. Ayers handled New York's Lawrence Taylor, so there is no reason to believe he can't handle Williams. Ayers is also the pulling guard on the halfback sweeps to the left, usually pinching off the linebacker or hitting the strong safety.

49er tight end CHARLE YOUNG vs. Bengal strong safety BOBBY KEMP — Young continues to be an enigma to the 49er coaching staff. He's a good blocker, has contagious enthusiasm, but he doesn't always run the proper pass patterns. With double coverage expected on Clark and Solomon, Young could be the key to the 49ers' passing game. The rookie Kemp, at 6-1 and 185 pounds, is not match for the 6-4, 234-pound Young.

49er right cornerback ERIC WRIGHT vs. Bengal wide receiver CRIS COLLINSWORTH — Unlike teammate Ronnie Lott, Wright still has problems seeing where the ball is without turning completely around. Bengal quarterback Ken Anderson is too smart not to try to exploit this flaw.

Scouting report on Cincinnati

When Cincinnati and San Francisco met in Riverfront Stadium late in the regular season, Inside Football Report suggested the matchup could be "a December preview of Super Bowl XVI."

Even though the Bengals and the 49ers had the best records in their conferences at the time, there was still universal snickering when anyone suggested that two teams who had been 6-10 the previous year could survive the playoff pressure and make it to the Pontiac Silverdome.

Perhaps the young Cincinnati players and the even younger San Franciscans just didn't understand the odds they faced. Or maybe they didn't care.

The 49ers won that game, 21-3, and will carry a seven-game winning streak into S.B. XVI. That defeat was the only one the Bengals suffered in their last 10 starts.

Cincinnati was the National Football League's most effective team when it came to avoiding turnovers, committing only 24 during the regular season. However, six of those mistakes came against the 49ers and contributed greatly to the outcome.

"We only had the ball 10 times that day," recalled Coach Forrest Gregg. "And when you give it away six times, that doesn't leave much to work with."

When the Bengals have the ball — All-pro quarterback Ken Anderson's arm has thawed out after the icy victory over San Diego in the AFC title game and he's certain to keep it warm against the 49ers. Even though the Bengals ranked second in the NFL in total offense, however, they passed only slightly more frequently than they ran and that ratio isn't expected to change dramatically. Pete Johnson, the 250-pound fullback, keeps defenses painfully honest up the middle and is also lethal on swing passes if opponents get too deep conscious. Anderson had the league's lowest interception percentage and is not prone to silly mistakes. He was also the league's top running quarterback and his willingness to tuck the ball in and take off only adds to the problem he presents. The best way to stop him is to keep him in the pocket and get to him with pressure up the middle, but that hasn't been easy against a line anchored by man-mountain tackle Anthony Munoz. Anderson does not throw the bomb at the drop of a helmet, but he will go deep four or five times a game. For the most part, he prefers to work tight end Dan Ross and wide receivers Cris Collinsworth and Isaac Curtis on 10- to 15-yard routes.

When the Bengals are on defense — This aspect of the game should be particularly interesting because the Bengal defense has been willing to give up short passes in the old bend-but-don't-break tradition, figuring if they can prevent the deep pass they can force a mistake before giving up any points. The 49ers, on the other hand, attack a defense in exactly that manner, chewing up yardage in bits and pieces instead of chunks and hunks and counting on consistency to get them down into the end zone. Obviously, both those theories can't work at the same time. Cincinnati's pass rush has been consistent but not spectacular and San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana's nimbleness will make ends Eddie Edwards and Ross Browner outside conscious, particularly when they have no help from blitzing linebackers. Reggie Williams is the only linebacker with considerable speed and running backs usually concentrate on the opposite side of the field. Hank Bullough, the defensive coordinator the Bengals refer to as the Dr. of Defense, always seems to come up with a new wrinkle. He has used three, four and five defensive linemen; one, two three and four linebackers, and four, five, six and seven backs. Keep your eye on free safety Bryan Hicks. In recent weeks, receivers have tried to go right at cornerbacks Ken Riley and Louis Breeden in zone situations, then break off the patterns and slip into the inside seam before Hicks arrives.

KEY MATCHUPS:

Bengal left offensive tackle ANTHONY MUNOZ vs. 49er right defensive end FRED DEAN — Dean can line up anywhere along the line in San Francisco's defensive scheme, but he'll usually be opposite Munoz in a match up of all-pros. Dean (6-2, 230) will be relying on his quickness and Munoz (6-6, 278) on his strength. Dean was one of the few ends to get the best of Munoz last year and he did it by moving out wide and taking a straight angle at the quarterback. That tactic only works, however, when a quarterback is in a must-pass situation. When these teams met in December, Dean had no solo tackles, one assist and half a sack. Watch where Dean lines up this time. If he persists in staying wide, expect the Bengals to run the ball between Munoz and left guard Dave Lapham.

49er wide receivers FREDDIE SOLOMON and DWIGHT CLARK vs. Bengal cornerbacks KEN RILEY and LOUIS BREEDEN — Solomon didn't face Cincinnati the last time because of a leg problem, but he showed Dallas he is fully recovered. Clark is not much of a deep threat, but he's tough and smart and he knows how to help his quarterback, as he demonstrated on coming back for the TD catch that beat the Cowboys.

Bengal defensive left end EDDIE EDWARDS vs. 49er offensive right tackle KEITH FAHNHORST — Edwards, Cincinnati's best defensive lineman, was held out of the first 49er game and Fahnhorst obliterated backup Gary Burley. Edwards' strained knee is almost back to normal and he won't have to wear the bulky brace that hampered his movement when he first returned.

49er strong safety CARLTON WILLIAMSON vs. Bengal tight end DAN ROSS — Ross was a consistent, big-play man all year and has continued to fill that role in playoff games. He's a master at disguising his intentions, particularly when he blocks down and drifts into the secondary. He has deceptive speed and Anderson likes to float the ball deep down the middle when there's one-on-one coverage and the free safety is busy elsewhere.

Bengal wide receivers CRIS COLLINSWORTH and ISAAC CURTIS vs. 49er cornerbacks RONNIE LOTT and ERIC WRIGHT — There's an interesting blend of experience here because Collinsworth, Lott and Wright are all rookies and Curtis is in his ninth year. The 49er youngsters held up well all year, but the Cowboys forced them into some big mistakes, particularly two interference calls on Lott. In the first San Francisco-Cincinnati game, Collinsworth and Curtis had only four catches between them. If Anderson is getting protection, look for him to go deep quickly, perhaps even on the first series. Watch the in-fighting as Collinsworth works his way down field.

PRO PROBE

Q. Has there ever been a Super Bowl game that wasn't a sellout? — N.B.

A. Yes, the first one. Held in Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum on Jan. 15, 1967, the Super Bowl was not yet the enormous media event it is now. A crowd of 61,946 fans were on hand to witness Green Bay's 35-10 thrashing of Kansas City.

Q. The other day I saw a receiver catch a pass and go out of bounds without having either foot in bounds. I always thought that in the pros a receiver had to have two feet in. Isn't this so? — M.M.

A. Yes, under normal circumstances. The rules state that a receiver must have both feet in bounds and have control of the ball before going out of bounds. But that rule does not apply if he catches the ball in bounds and then is bumped out of bounds by a defender before touching the turf on the field of play.

Q. Ronnie Lott, San Francisco's rookie cornerback, made several all-pro teams this season. I have a friend who claims that Lott was not a cornerback in college. Is this true? — P.T.

A. In his early days at USC, Lott, a product of Eisenhower High in Rialto, was a cornerback. But he was moved to strong safety, where he enjoyed outstanding junior and senior seasons. After his senior year, Lott was a consensus All-American and was drafted No. 1 by the 49ers.

Q. How many head coaches have the Los Angeles Rams had? — A.B.

A. The Rams have had 16 head coaches since 1937, when the team was organized in Cleveland. They are: Hugo Bezdek (1937-38), Art Lewis (1938), Earl "Dutch" Clark (1939-42), Aldo "Buff" Donelli (1944 — the team suspended operations in 1943), Adam Walsh (1945-46), Bob Snyder (1947), Clark Shaugnessy (1948-49), Joe Stydahar (1950-52), Hampton Pool (1952-54), Sid Gillman (1955-59), Bob Waterfield (1960-62), Harland Svare (1962-65), George Allen (1966-70), Tommy Prothro (1971-72), Chuck Knox (1973-77) and Ray Malavasi (1978-). The winningest Ram coach of them all was Knox, now with Buffalo, who compiled a 57-20-1 record during his tenure.

Q. Bill Walsh has done great things as the head coach of the San Francisco 49ers. What's his background? — D.E.

A. Besides the 49ers, Walsh had a hand in developing two other teams involved in divisional championship games this year, having served as offensive coordinator of both the Bengals and the Chargers during the formative years of quarterbacks Ken Anderson and Dan Fouts. Walsh was born in Los Angeles on Nov. 30, 1931. The family moved to Hayward, near San Francisco, while he was in high school. He eventually went on to San Jose State, where he played end on the football team. He then coached high school ball before joining Marv Levy's staff at California and moving on to John Ralston's staff at Stanford. He began his professional career as an Oakland assistant in 1966, and then moved on to Cincinnati, where he was Paul Brown's offensive coordinator for eight years. He then moved to San Diego, where he served in the same capacity for a season. In 1977, he went back to Stanford, this time as that university's head coach. In 1979, he was hired as head coach of the 49ers. Walsh and his wife Geri have three children — Steve, Craig and Elizabeth.

Q. What ever happened to Dick Modzelewski, the former defensive tackle with the Giants and Browns? — B.R.

A. Modzelewski now serves as defensive line coach of the Cincinnati Bengals. An outstanding defensive lineman with the Giants (1956-63) and Browns (1964-66), he served as defensive line coach of the Browns from 1968-76 and was the team's defensive coordinator in 1977, a year in which he also served as the team's interim head coach. From there, he went to New York, where he served as the Giants' defensive coordinator until moving on to Cincinnati in 1979.

Raymond Berry

son, Berry ranked No. 1 in the NFL pass catching record books with 631 catches for 9,278 yards and 68 touchdowns. He now ranks No. 2 in catches and No. 3 in yardage.

Just over 600 of those catches were thrown by Unitas. But perhaps the most amazing statistic concerning Berry's career was his number of fumbles — one; count it, the year was 1960.

"No one worked harder than Raymond," says Unitas. "I know he exhausted me. He took great pride in his '88 maneuvers' to get open. Each week, he'd work on every one of them. If he didn't get them all in before practice ended, he'd stay late and find a groundskeeper, a kid or a sportswriter to throw passes to him."

"Many techniques now commonplace to the coaching and operation of a wide receiver originated with Berry working on his own," says Shula, who once defended Berry to a 12-catch game while a defensive back with the Washington Redskins.

"I think he perfected the sideline route, the comeback pattern and the scramble patterns used when a quarterback gets into trouble. If he had a physical strength, it was an unusually good jumping ability and a great set of hands. If Unitas got the ball onto Berry's hands, Raymond did not drop it."

One game stands out in Berry's career. In the famed sudden-death 23-17 Colt win over the New York Giants in the 1958 NFL title game, Berry caught 12 passes for 178 yards — still championship game records. He caught three passes in the closing minutes of regulation play, the last at the seven-yard line to set up Steve Myra's game-tying field goal. And he caught two passes for 33 yards in the Colts' drive to Alan Ameche's game-winning touchdown. Earlier in the game, Berry caught a 15-yard touchdown pass.

That was the first of Berry's three straight All-Pro and five consecutive Pro Bowl seasons. He led the Colts in receiving eight times and led the NFL three times (1958-60). In '60 he caught 74 passes for 1,298 yards. In '61, Berry caught a career high 75 passes, but didn't score a touchdown.

Inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1973, Berry never left football. After retiring, he coached three years at the University of Arkansas before joining the staff of the Detroit Lions for three years. He then served two years on Forrest Gregg's staff at Cleveland and has coached the past three seasons with the New England Patriots.

Plenty of souvenirs available

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Between 700,000 and 1 million souvenirs bearing the Super Bowl XVI logo will be sold between now and the game Sunday between the Cincinnati Bengals and San Francisco 49ers, according to Dick Higgins, who distributes the items.

Super Bowl fans will spend $2.6 million on up to 24,000 T-shirts, 12,000 hats, 500,000 cups, 22,000 glasses and 35,000 buttons, Higgins said.

The items are being handled by 250 stores in the Detroit area, plus the Pontiac Silverdome, hotel gift shops and shopping mall booths.

The league has a Detroit law firm, bolstered by three out-of-town attorneys, who are taking trademark violators to court to halt them from selling unauthorized Super Bowl souvenirs. Higgins said four or five people already have been cited.

How contending teams were built

In this, Pete Rozelle's Year of Parity, perhaps there could be no more fitting Super Bowl foes than the San Francisco 49ers and Cincinnati Bengals.

Both these clubs pulled themselves up by their shirt-tails, rising through that great NFL equalizer of the draft. These teams rose from the depths — San Francisco from back-to-back 2-14 seasons to 6-10 in 1980 and 15-3 this year; Cincinnati from consecutive 4-12s to 6-10 a year ago to 14-4.

Shrewd staffs rebuilt both clubs — mostly through the draft, although both also worked diligently in the free agent and trade markets. San Francisco has 14 players plucked off the free agent lists, including five regulars. Four starters arrived in the Bay Area via trade. Meanwhile, every one of Cincinnati's Super Bowl starters came to the Bengals via the draft, although 11 of the 45 roster positions have been filled via trades and free agents.

San Francisco's roster numbers 13 rookies, including seven from the draft and six free agents. There are also seven picks from the 1980 draft on the 49ers and four free agent signees from 1980. And seven of the 49ers began their tenure with the club in 1979 — meaning 31 of the 45 San Francisco players have no more than three years experience in San Francisco.

San Francisco has 10 fewer draft picks on their roster than Cincinnati to go along with seven players picked up via trade and 14 free agents — quite an achievement. Here is a look at both clubs and how they were built into Super Bowl finalists.

CINCINNATI — Eleven first-round draft picks dot the Cincinnati roster and eight start. Founder, vice president and general manager Paul Brown can be thanked for this. One of the sport's top judges of talent, Brown annually conducts the Cincinnati draft.

Although the last five drafts have produced over half of the Bengal roster, one has to go back to 1969 to find the beginnings of this team. That's when cornerback Ken Riley was a sixth-round pick out of Florida A-M. Remember quarterback Greg Cook and linebacker Bill Bergey? They were the first two Bengal draftees that year.

The man who makes the Bengals go, quarterback Ken Anderson, came to the club as a third-round pick from Augustana College in 1971. The senior No. 1 regular is wide receiver Isaac Curtis, selected from San Diego State in 1973.

By rounds, here is a look at the Bengal starting lineup:

First-round: offensive tackle Anthony Munoz ('80), running back Charles Alexander ('79), defensive end Ross Browner ('78), center Blair Bush ('78), defensive end Eddie Edwards ('77), defensive nose tackle Wilson Whitley ('77), linebacker Glenn Cameron ('75) and wide receiver Curtis ('73).

Second-round: wide receiver Cris Collinsworth ('81), tight end Dan Ross ('79), fullback Pete Johnson ('78), and guard Glen Bujnoch ('76).

Third-round: linebacker Reggie Williams ('76), linebacker Bo Harris ('75), offensive guard Dave Lapham ('74), linebacker Jim LeClair ('72), and Anderson ('71).

Fourth-round: offensive tackle Mike Wilson ('77).

Fifth-round: free safety Bryan Hicks ('80).

Sixth-round: Riley ('69).

Seventh-round: cornerback Louis Breeden ('77).

Eighth-round: safety Bobby Kemp ('81).

It was the '77 draft, in which defensive linemen Edwards and Whitley were both taken in the first round, that got the Bengals moving forward again. Five starters came out of that draft. Nine have come from the four drafts since.

Over the last five years, only six players taken in the first three rounds have failed to stick with the Bengals — who usually trade to improve their draft chances. During those five seasons, Cincinnati has had nine first-round picks, 27 in the first three rounds and 41 in the first five rounds. Not once have they not had at least one pick in each round.

The key non-draft additions to this year's team were placekicker Jim Breech, picked up from Oakland on waivers, and safety Mike Fuller, acquired from San Diego.

SAN FRANCISCO, on the other hand, has often traded draft choices to improve itself. It sent a second-round pick to San Diego early this season to get all-pro defensive end Fred Dean.

But although only three former No. 1 draft choices are in the 49er starting lineup, the last two drafts — both under third-year coach Bill Walsh — have been particularly rewarding to San Francisco. Three-quarters of the 49er secondary — cornerbacks Ronnie Lott (No. 1 from USC) and Eric Wright (No. 2B from Missouri) and safety Carlton Williamson (No. 3 from Pittsburgh) came out of last spring's draft along with four other players who made the roster — defensive tackles John Harty (2A) and Pete Kugler (6), defensive back Lynn Thomas (5) and fullback Arrington Jones (5B).

A year earlier, the 49ers had a draft that produced five regulars — fullback Earl Cooper (1A) and

IFR WINNING EDGE

CINCINNATI (PLUS 1) OVER SAN FRANCISCO — Back on Dec. 6 the Bengals were 6½-point favorites over the 49ers at home and lost, 21-3. So how can anyone choose them in the Super Bowl?

One reason is that in recent years the AFC champion has dominated the Super Bowl and overall the AFC is 10-5 against the Super Bowl spread. And remember last year? Philadelphia defeated Oakland 10-7 in the regular season only to lose to the Raiders, 27-10, in Super Bowl XV.

Cincinnati is 14-4 overall against the spread this season, 6-2 on the road (essentially this is a road game for both teams), 7-1 as an underdog, 9-4 on artificial surfaces and 0-2 in domed stadiums.

San Francisco is also 14-4 vs. the points overall, 5-3 on the road, 6-2 as a favorite, 2-2 on artificial surfaces and 0-2 in domed stadiums.

The 49ers have not won in the Silverdome the past two seasons. They fell to Detroit, 17-13, midway through last year and dropped their season-opener this year to the Lions, 24-17.

The Bengals have never played in the Silverdome. Cincinnati was 2-2 against the spread vs. NFC teams this year while the 49ers were 3-1 vs. the points against AFC clubs.

This is only the fourth meeting ever between the two teams. In 1974 they met for the first time with Cincinnati covering on the road as five-point favorites, 21-3.

In 1978, San Francisco was a three-point underdog at home to the Bengals and won the game, 28-12.

Favorites have done well in past Super Bowls, covering the points in 10 of the 15 games. In the eight playoff games Remember Super Bowl I?

GREEN BAY 35, KANSAS CITY 10 — Said Hank Stram, Chiefs' head coach: "We're not playing this one for the Chiefs. We're playing for every owner, coach, player, official — and anyone else who has ever had anything to do with the AFL. We're playing for the people who had faith in the AFL in the dark days."

Countered the Packers' Vince Lombardi: "Winning is like a drug. It's a hard thing to kick. We're playing for the Green Bay Packers, not the NFL."

PRO QUIZ ANSWERS

1 — B. Super Bowl I was held in Los Angeles Jan. 15, 1967, and Green Bay defeated Kansas City, 35-10.

2 — C. Marv Fleming, a tight end with Green Bay (1967-68) and Miami (1972-74), was the first man to play in five Super Bowls, a record eventually equaled by seven others.

3 — A. In two games with Dallas, fullback Walt Garrison carried the ball 26 times for 139 yards — a 5.3 average.

4 — D. Against Oakland in 1968, Green Bay's Don Chandler kicked four field goals.

5 — B. In four Super Bowl appearances, Pittsburgh running back Franco Harris scored four touchdowns.

6 — A. In four Super Bowl games, Pittsburgh wide receiver Lynn Swann caught 16 passes.

7 — A. In two games with Kansas City, Jerrel Wilson averaged 46.5 yards per punt.

8 — B. Against Pittsburgh in the 1976 Super Bowl, Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach fumbled three times.

9 — B. Against Oakland in the second Super Bowl in 1968, Green Bay's Willie Wood returned a punt 31 yards.

10 — C. In the first quarter of last year's Super Bowl against Philadelphia, Oakland receiver Cliff Branch caught a two-yard scoring pass from Jim Plunkett.

preceding this Super Bowl, four favorites covered and four underdogs came within the points.

The last four times the Bengals have been underdogs, they have beaten the spread. San Francisco is just 3-2 vs.

the points the last five times it has been favored. AFC teams have won eight of the last nine Super Bowls and 11 of the last 13. The Bengals should continue the trend.

Take the point.

Quite a difference in Super Bowls I, XVI

Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — When the lords of football created the Super Bowl, tickets cost as little as $6, you could get a seat and the whole thing generated more curiosity than commotion.

For Super Bowl XVI, each ticket costs $40 — if you can find one — and it's a full-blown spectacle.

The late Vince Lombardi, whose name now graces the trophy presented to the winner of the National Football League's championship game, said at the first Super Bowl: "I think the game has to have a little tradition before you can tell what it means."

The 35-10 victory by Lombardi's Green Bay Packers over the American Football League champion Kansas City Chiefs on Jan. 15, 1967, launched more than a football tradition. It marked the birth of an American institution.

Super Bowl Sunday now is a ritual, a slice of Americana. Streets are empty while people stay inside to watch the game on television. Taverns are crowded.

At the site of the game, there are limousines to the ballpark, escalated prices, over-tipping, betting, ticket scalping and elaborate tailgate parties in the parking lots. The kickoff is the culmination of a week-long cultural phenomenon.

It wasn't always this way.

At first, many cynics, critics and NFL loyalists expected the AFL-NFL duel to be a one-sided affair, just another football game.

Now, though, the locale of the Super Bowl game is to pro football what the Emerald City was to the Land of Oz.

A wizard from Cincinnati named Forrest Gregg is a conspicuous link between Super Bowls I and XVI. Gregg earned two of his three Super Bowl rings as Green Bay's offensive right tackle before the Bengals' franchise ever played a football game. Sunday, he becomes the first man to participate in the Super Bowl as both a player and head coach, when the Bengals meet the San Francisco 49ers.

Gregg has changed noticeably in appearance since 1967. So has the Super Bowl.

For instance:

—The name Super Bowl was used right from the beginning by the press but was not adopted by pro football until 1969. In 1967, the tickets read: World Championship Game AFL-NFL. The "Super Bowl" name was coined by Lamar Hunt, owner of the Chiefs, when he came upon one of his 7-year-old daughter Sharon's toys, a Super Ball. It took three years for the NFL to officially accept what had long since become the game's unofficial moniker.

—A total of 770 credentials were issued to members of the media for Super Bowl I. This year, about 2,000 print, television, radio and photo journalists are expected to descend upon the Pontiac Silverdome.

—For those who pay their way into the stadium for Super Bowl XVI without the aid of scalpers, the ducats are priced at $40 each. At Super Bowl I, they ranged from $6 to $12.

—Network television documented Super Bowl I with the care and attention to detail generally reserved for presidential inaugurations and political assassinations. The game was shown on both pro football networks, CBS and NBC, with each employing its own announcers and CBS providing the production crew for both. That was the only sports event ever televised live by more than one network. This year, as in the previous 14 Super Bowls, the telecast will be carried on one network. CBS has the honors this time, as it had for Super Bowl II in 1968. Next year is NBC's turn.

Cost totals $10 million

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — It's costing the National Football League about $10 million to stage Sunday's Super Bowl XVI and the league expects to take in about that amount, meaning the operation should break even, chief NFL accountant Thomas A. Sullivan says.

CBS television is paying the biggest chunk to the league — $6 million for the rights to broadcast the affair to 100 million Americans.

Ticket buyers at the Silverdome will cough up $3,341,715 to watch Cincinnati play San Francisco. Other fees paid to the league come from CBS radio, the radio stations which normally broadcast the two teams, revenue from program sales and interest on money already in the bank.

The NFL, meanwhile, pays $7.5 million into the player pension and health insurance funds, $820,000 to the winning team and $685,000 to the loser for payment of team expenses during Super Bowl week. Winning players get $14,000 apiece, losers get $9,000 each.

Other league expenses include staging the halftime show, expenses for NFL staff and game officials, rings for the winning team and transportation costs for the teams arriving and leaving Detroit.

1967 cost each network $1 million; this year's tab for CBS will be $6 million. Commercial time in 1967 cost $85,000 per minute on CBS, $70,000 per minute on NBC (CBS, which telecast NFL games while NBC had the younger AFL, had bigger ratings, hence the higher price). Now it requires $690,000 to buy an advertiser one minute of network air time on the Super Bowl telecast.

—Eleven cameras were inside the stadium relaying the pictures at the first Super Bowl. For Super Bowl XVI, the network will have 23 cameras — one flown above the domed stadium in a helicopter to capture the landscape of this winter wonderland.

—The television pregame show, a tight 30-minute package in 1967, will be 90 minutes this time.

—The trophy took on a new look after Super Bowl IV because of the AFL-NFL merger. It's still a sterling silver football mounted on a three-sided base, but it no longer displays the logos of both the AFL and NFL on the front with "World Professional Football Championship" emblazoned beneath. Now, only the NFL symbol remains, with "Vince Lombardi Trophy" and the number of the Super Bowl on the front.

—The ball changed, too. The one used by San Francisco and Cincinnati will be a standard Wilson NFL football. For the first four Super Bowl games, the AFL and NFL teams each used its own league's ball on offense. That's because the balls were geometrically different and the quarterbacks insisted on gripping their own league's version.

The Wilson NFL product, which had laces 4 1/4 inches long, was more rounded at the ogive (the area from the laces to the nose of the ball) and had a naturally tanned-in tack. Spalding's AFL model No. J5-V, a college-type ball with a more tapered ogive and 4 1/2-inch lacing, was sprayed with a tacky substance after its manufacture.

—The first winning and losing shares were $15,000 and $7,500. The winners of Super Bowl XVI will take home $18,000. The losers will get $9,000.

—The only unbroken, untied individual record left standing from 1967 is Jerrel Wilson's 61-yard punt for Kansas City, the longest ever in a Super Bowl game. Two other statistical marks from Super Bowl I also are still in the books — fewest rushing attempts by both teams (Kansas City 19, Green Bay 33), and most points by a team in the third quarter (Green Bay 14).

—This is the 15th consecutive Super Bowl sellout. In the first Super Bowl, the attendance at the 93,000-seat Los Angeles Coliseum fell more than 30,000 short of capacity, with a turnstile count of 61,946. Those fans in the Coliseum were the only ones in the country's second-largest market to have witnessed the history-making spectacle live. The game was blacked out on local television, as were Super Bowl games II through VI.

—The betting establishments in Nevada couldn't elicit much action on the Green Bay-Kansas City contest. But now, watching the Super Bowl and betting it go hand-in-hand for many. The amount of money wagered has increased substantially each year, according to Norm Nielson, the director of advertising and public relations for Club Cal Neva in Reno, Nev.

"Betting has come out of the closet," said Nielson, who hinted that the amount bet around the country (Nevada is the only state where sports betting is legal) may reach into the billions for Sunday's game. "It's because of the increased TV exposure. Betting, as well as the Super Bowl, has received a lot more publicity than before."

from Rice) and defensive end Jim Stuckey (1B from Clemson) and linebackers Keena Turner (2 from Purdue), Craig Puki (3 from Tennessee) and Bobby Leopold (8 from Notre Dame) plus punter Jim Miller (3A from Mississippi).

The only other No. 1 draft choice starting for the 49ers is all-pro guard Randy Cross, who was a second-round selection from UCLA in 1976. The 49ers, however, didn't have a first-round pick that year, which is symbolic of many past drafts.

Whereas Cincinnati has always covete as many draft choices as it could find, the 49ers have a history of trading them away. Or, until 1980, using them poorly.

Prior to 1979, the 49ers had dealt away their No.

1 in three of the previous five drafts giving them up for the likes of O.J. Simpson and Jim Plunkett.

The senior member of the 49ers, starting linebacker Willie Harper, came to San Francisco as a second-round draft pick in 1973. The '74 draft produced offensive tackle Keith Fahnhorst in tee second round and the '76 draft helped fill out the offensive line with Cross and John Ayers. Center Fred Quillan came in the '78 draft and the '79 draft produced the pass-catch combination of quarterback Joe Montana (third round) and wide receiver Dwight Clark (10th round).

Montana's two other targets — wide receiver Freddie Solomon (from Miami) and tight end Charle Young (from Los Angeles) came to San Francisco via trades as did offensive guard Dan Audick (from San Diego). Alternating halfbacks Lenvil Elliott and Ricky Patton both signed on as free agents after being cut from other teams. Safety Dwight Hicks also came to the 49ers via the free agent route as did defensive end Dwaine Board. And middle linebacker Jack Reynolds signed on after leaving Los Angeles. The last defensive regular, middle guard Archie Reese, was a fifth-round draft pick in 1978.

As the 49ers came together, they stayed together. During the course of the 1981 season, San Francisco made starting lineup changes at only two positions, although it played considerable "situation" defense. In the 12th week, Puki replaced the injured Danny Bunz at linebacker. And the 49ers made several changes at running back where Patton, Elliott and Walt Easley all shared the slot opposite Cooper.

Bengal starters

24 The DAILY REPORT, Thurs., Jan. 21, 1982

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Thumbnail sketches of the Cincinnati Bengals, who play the San Francisco 49ers Sunday in Super Bowl XVI:

OFFENSE

Wide receiver — Cris Collinsworth — 22, 6-5, 192, Florida — Led Bengals in receiving yardage with 1,009; only rookie starter on offense; second-team All-Pro; was Bengals' second-round draft pick but beat out top choice David Verser for starting job.

Left tackle — Anthony Munoz, 22, 6-6, 278, Southern California — Starter on AP All-Pro team; also received a vote as Offensive Player of the Year; first-round draft choice in 1980.

Left guard — Dave Lapham, 29, 6-5, 262, Syracuse — Can also play tackle and center; has been a starter for seven seasons; associated with numerous regional and national charitable organizations.

Center — Blair Bush, 24, 6-3, 252, Washington — Has been a starter since being drafted No.1 in 1978; snaps on punts and place-kicks, too; adept at handling nose tackles in 3-4 defenses.

Right guard — Max Montoya, 25, 6-5, 275, UCLA — Was seventh-round draft choice in 1979; became a starter late that season; particularly good at pass-blocking.

Right tackle — Mike Wilson, 26, 6-5, 271, Georgia — Moved from left tackle to right side when Munoz arrived; might have been higher than fourth-round pick in 1977 draft if hadn't signed to play in Canada; joins Bengals in 1978.

Tight end — Dan Ross, 24, 6-4, 235, Northeastern — Led Bengals in receiving during season with 71; was college-division All-American; holds numerous NCAA Division II receiving records.

Wide receiver — Isaac Curtis, 30, 6-1, 192, San Diego State — Bengals' No.1 draft choice in 1973; owns team receiving records for catches, yards and touchdowns; was also a major track star in college.

Quarterback — Ken Anderson, 31, 6-3, 212, Augustana, Ill. — Was NFL passing champion for third time in 1981 and was named Most Valuable Player and Offensive Player of the Year; threw 29 touchdowns and only 10 interceptions during regular season.

Running back — Pete Johnson, 27, 6-0, 249, Ohio State — Rushed 274 times for 1,077 yards, both team records, and scored 12 touchdowns during 1981 season; rushed for 80 yards and a TD in AFC title game against San Diego.

Running back — Charles Alexander, 24, 6-1, 221, Louisiana State — Scored two touchdowns in divisional playoff against Buffalo; can play both fullback and halfback; was No.2 pick (behind linebacker Tom Cousineau) in first round of 1979 draft.

DEFENSE

Left end — Eddie Edwards, 27, 6-5, 256, Miami, Fla. — First-round draft choice in 1977 and an immediate starter; was second in sacks with 10 during 1981 season.

Nose tackle — Wilson Whitley, 26, 6-3, 265, Houston — No.1 draft choice in 1977; won Lombardi Award in 1976 as nation's top collegiate defensive lineman; rebounded from 1980 off-season knee surgery.

Right end — Ross Browner, 27, 6-3, 261, Notre Dame — Drafted No.1 by Cincinnati in 1978 after winning Lombardi Award and Outland Trophy, the latter as the nation's best lineman; recorded nine sacks.

Left outside linebacker — Bo Harris, 28, 6-3, 226, Louisiana State — Two interceptions, two fumble recoveries and two sacks to go along with 69 tackles; strength is pass coverage.

Left inside linebacker — Jim LeClair, 30, 6-3, 234, North Dakota — Second off club with 81 tackles; third-round pick in 1971 and only remaining Bengal from that draft.

Right inside linebacker — Glenn Cameron, 28, 6-2, 228, Florida — First-round draft choice in 1976; had 76 tackles and an interception; operates a T-shirt company with teammate Dave Lapham.

Right outside linebacker — Reggie Williams, 27, 6-0, 228, Dartmouth — Was team leader in tackles with 83 and sacks with 11 and shared second in interceptions with four; very active in charities.

Left cornerback — Louis Breedon, 26, 5-11, 185, North Carolina Central — Led Bengals' defensive backs in tackles. See BENGALS/Page 26

Paul Brown climbs another mountain

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press

Super Bowl XVI is just another mountaintop for the irrepressible Paul E. Brown.

He's now scaled them all. It seemed impossible that there could be another for this longtime coach, innovator, executive, founder and architect of football leagues.

When the Cincinnati Bengals square off against the San Francisco 49ers in the Silverdome on the outskirts of Detroit, the tall, slim, ramrod-straight figure of Brown will not be discernible on the sidelines.

Directing the Bengals as head coach will be a big, craggy man named Forrest Gregg, plucked by Brown in December 1979 after Gregg had left the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. Across the field, the 49ers will get their instructions from silver-haired, scholarly looking Bill Walsh, a Brown protege.

But the scene will definitely carry the thumbprint of Paul Brown, even to the painted sheet signs and the orange and white tiger stripes that will adorn the Bengal helmets and uniforms and, in some form or another, many of the team's wild, screaming fans.

Certainly, some oldtimers reasoned, this couldn't be the doing of Brown — not the stern taskmaster and traditionalist who once banned banners in the stadium on the grounds they were undignified.

Wrong.

It all came out of Paul Brown's busy head. Questioned on it at a civic club luncheon recently, Paul said, "Let 'em have their fun. They can do anything as long as it isn't against the law. Actually, I like it."

Questions proliferated: "Had the old man gone soft?" "Was this the new Paul Brown?"

"Not a new Paul Brown, just the old Paul Brown who never forgot how to adjust," snaps the 72-year-old gridiron wizard, the winningest coach of all time at any level.

It's irony that a Brown team has never before been to the Super Bowl, so dominant has been his role in structuring and restructuring the game. The reason is mostly logistical.

The Super Bowl didn't come into existence until 1967, as Brown was nearing the end of an agonizing five-year respite from the game following an ugly break with the new management of the Cleveland Browns.

It was not until a year later that he emerged as founder, coach and general manager of the Bengals, a raw band of rookies and hand-me-downs who formed the new expansion team of the National Football League.

This is the team he nurtured from the crib, like a doting father, putting it together piece by piece, watching it mature into strong manhood and finally proving itself — in the year 1981 — as one of the dominant teams of the NFL.

He won't know until Sunday if it's actually the best. The 49ers first must be given their prerogative of dispute. But there would be no surprise if the Bengals did it. Championships long have been a Paul Brown trademark.

For the old master, the game again has come full cycle.

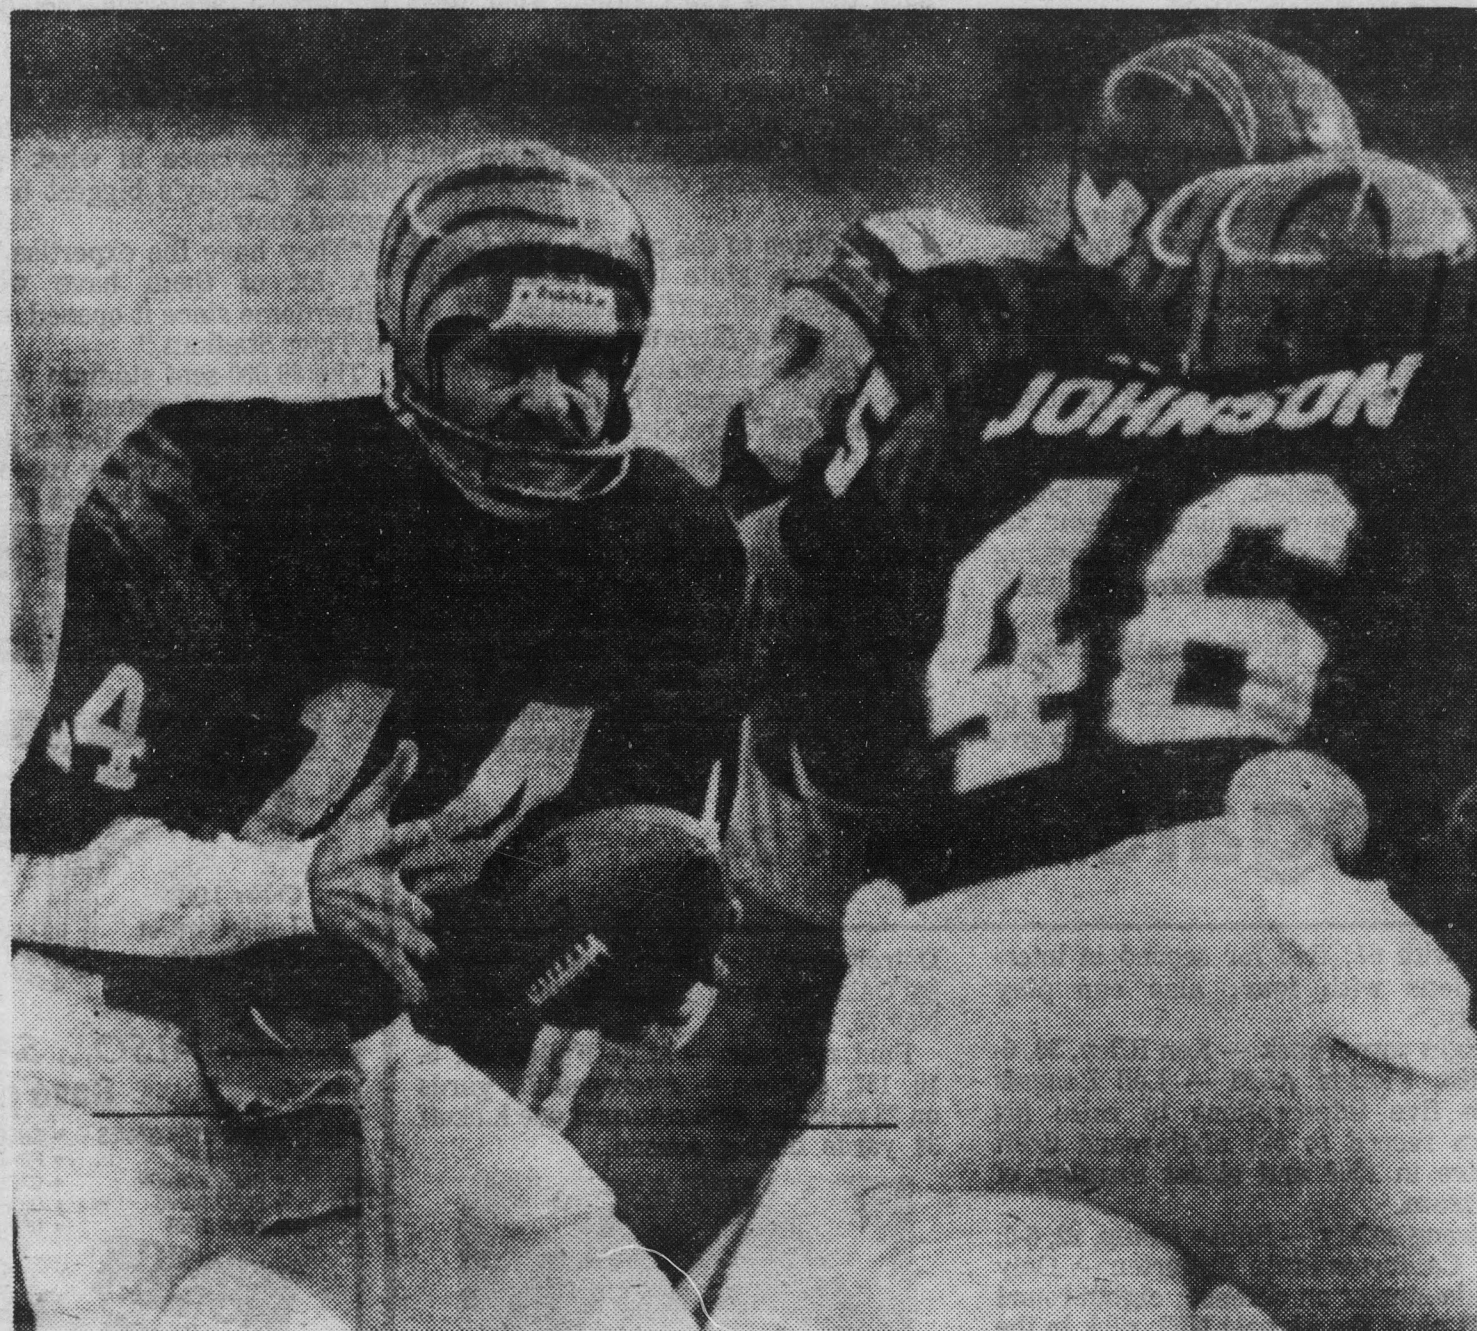

Brown has won at every level — first as coach of his former high school, Massillon, Ohio, later at Ohio State, then with the Cleveland Browns of the old All-America Football Conference, later with the Browns in the NFL and finally with the Bengals.

Covering almost half a century at every level, he amassed a record of 351 victories, only 133 losses and 16 ties for a percentage of .725. It shades even the collegiate record of Alabama's Bear Bryant.

Brown won all four championships played during his tenure as coach of the Browns in the later-dissolved AAFC and added three more titles — in 1950, 1954 and 1955 — after taking the Browns into the NFL.

He coached such all-time greats as quarterback Otto Graham, hard-running Marion Motley and Jim Brown, the latter still holding the career rushing record in the NFL.

The AAFC teams were looked upon as "bush leaguers" by the better, well-established NFL, so there was wide public interest when the Browns went against the NFL champion Philadelphia Eagles, "the real pros," in the opening game after the merger in 1950.

Much of the credit for Cincinnati's success this year goes to quarterback Ken Anderson.

The Browns, using a wide-open air attack, crushed the Eagles 35-10, provoking Greasy Neale, the Eagles' coach, to comment sourly: "Those guys ought to be playing basketball. All they do is pass, trap and throw."

The two teams met a second time later in the season. The Eagles had been well armed to stop the Browns' passing attack. But the Browns won again. This time they didn't throw a pass.

This reflected the flexibility of Brown, who stressed that unpredictability was one of the most devastating weapons in the game.

PONTIAC, Mich. — Bob Hines and Branton Dennis have both seen "Black Sunday" and "Two-Minute Warning," two movies about super disaster at the Super Bowl.

One is about a terrorist in a blimp, the other about a sniper at pro football's championship game.

"Hopefully, they won't show them on television Saturday night," says Hines, head man of a force of private guards who will work Super Bowl XVI at the Pontiac Silverdome on Sunday.

"They bring those movies up all the time," says Dennis, a Pontiac police captain who is coordinating game security. "I just don't see it happening because things at the dome are going to be so tight."

Even if the Silverdome's inflated, Teflon-coated roof collapses — as it has twice since the stadium opened in 1975 — "the cables holding it up are such that you can continue your football game," Dennis said.

"I'm not saying you couldn't fly an airplane (over) there, but it's highly unlikely," he said, adding that the Federal Aviation Administration will restrict air traffic over the stadium on Sunday.

In addition to the private guards and local police, state troopers and Oakland County Sheriff's deputies will be on hand at the Silverdome.

The National Football League has its own security force. FBI agents will be on hand, the Secret Service will protect Vice President Bush, and U.S. postal inspectors will be looking for counterfeit or stolen tickets. More than 1,000 security personnel will be involved.

Hines is the Detroit district manager for Burns International Security, Inc., which will have about 350 uniformed and plainclothes officers at the game between the Cincinnati Bengals and San Francisco 49ers. The Silverdome is the largest facility guarded by the New York-based Burns.

Most of the guards are part-time employees dependent on the auto industry for their main income but all have experience in what Hines says will be Sunday's biggest headache — crowd control.

"They have the expertise," he said. "A lot of them have worked the Silverdome since it opened and worked at Tiger Stadium."

The 80,000-seat stadium was checked for bombs and potential fire hazards twice this week by Burns guards and will be "swept" many more times by various authorities before the game.

Bush will view the game from the glass-enclosed private box of Detroit Lions' owner William Clay Ford.

Hines, 43, is a Cincinnati native who is hoping the Bengals prevail but does not anticipate seeing it happen.

"I don't ever watch the games," he said. "I watch my guards."

"When this thing is over, if it's the success we anticipate, we're going to have a big party for all our people," he added.

Capt. Dennis would not say how many of Pontiac's 250 police officers would be assigned to the Silverdome on Sunday.

Paul Brown

"You must make the right calculation at the right time," he said. "You get only five or six chances for the right decision at key times. You win if you make the correct ones."

Always a great organizer, Brown was the first to use intelligence tests to gauge a player's earning potential, employ classroom notebook techniques, set up complete film clip statistical studies and grade players according to a composite of the findings.

Brown started the practice of calling plays from the sideline by using alternating guards. He developed pass patterns to rip holes in the defense and then defenses to counteract the same patterns. He is credited with being the first to switch good running backs to the defense "because they were so good I didn't want to waste them on offense."

Most of these Brown techniques have been adopted as unwritten law by other coaches.

In 17 years as Cleveland coach, Brown experienced only one losing season — in 1956. In 1962, his team went 7-6-1 and he was out of a job.

"I read once that George Allen won eight games and lost six in his first year with the Los Angeles Rams and the papers hailed him as a miracle man," Brown recalled. "I had almost the same record in 1962 and got fired."

Actually, it was a matter of clashing personalities. As head coach, Brown insisted that there be no interference from above, that he should be complete boss on selecting player personnel, welding it into a unit and getting it to win games.

This irritated the strong-willed Arthur Modell, the new owner, and Brown found himself outside looking in despite a pro record of 167 victories, only 53 losses and nine ties.

In 1970, two years after he took charge, the ragamuffin Bengals surprised the league by winning the AFC Central Division. Brown decided to relinquish coaching for the front office after the 1975 season.

49ers

215, Nebraska — Had 43 tackles, a sack and a fumble recovery; second-round pick in 1973; was a running back, middle guard and defensive end in college.

Left inside linebacker — Jack Reynolds, 34, 6-1, 232, Tennessee — Led 49ers in solo tackles (66) and assists (51) and intercepted a pass; acquired as a free agent from Los Angeles before 1981 season; hacksawed his car in half after a college loss, hence his nickname.

Right inside linebacker — Craig Puki, 24, 6-1, 231, Tennessee — Has played all four linebacker spots since being draft fifth in 1980; was linebacker, center and fullback in college; recovered two fumbles.

Right outside linebacker — Keena Turner, 23, 6-2, 219, Purdue — Third in total team tackles with 84; recovered three fumbles; came from the same Chicago high school that produced Dick Butkus.

Left cornerback — Ronnie Lott — 22, 6-0, 199, Southern California — First-team AP All-Pro; second in total tackles (89) and interceptions (seven), returning three pickoffs for touchdowns; picked No. 1 (eighth overall) in 1981 after making All-America.

Right cornerback — Eric Wright, 22, 6-1, 180, Missouri — Had three interceptions and two fumble recoveries; one of the team's second-round picks in 1981; was coached by 49ers' staff in Senior Bowl.

Strong safety — Carlton Williamson, 23, 6-0, 204, Pittsburgh — Four interceptions; drafted in third round, one of 49ers' three starting rookie defensive backs; recruited by Pitt as a fullback.

Free safety — Dwight Hicks, 25, 6-1, 189, Michigan — Second-team AP All-Pro; led 49ers with nine interceptions, one returned for a TD; failed in tryouts with Detroit and Philadelphia and played with Toronto before making it with the 49ers in 1979.

SPECIALISTS
Punter — Jim Miller, 24, 5-11, 183, Mississippi — Averaged 41.5 yards on 93 punts; kicks barefooted; has never had a punt blocked in his entire career; kicked a ball off the Superdome gondola in college, a feat matched only by Oakland's Ray Guy.

Place-kicker — Ray Wersching, 31, 5-11, 210, California — Led 49ers in scoring in 1981 with 81 points; signed as a free agent in 1977 after brief tour (1971) with Atlanta and four year (1973-76) with San Diego.

Punt returner — Freddie Solomon, 28, 5-11, 185, Tampa; averaged 6.0 yards on 29 returns; in 1980 became only 49er ever to return two punts for TDs in one season. Also rushed nine times for 43 yards and completed his only pass attempt for 25 yards.

Kickoff returner — Bill Ring, 25, 5-10, 215, Brigham Young — Averaged 21.7 yards on 10 returns (rookie Amos Lawrence was team leader with 25.7 on 17); led in playoff TD vs. New York Giants.
